SAVES BROTHER

Digs Him Out After Cavein Buries Man in Nine-Foot Hole

CLEVELAND, Dec. 18—Benjamin Lobe, 50, a plumber, was alive today, after being caught under falling earth in a nine-foot hole, due to the presence of mind and a prompt action of his brother, Harry Lobe.

The two were working together, installing a sewer maintainer when Benjamin was trapped at the bottom of the hole by a cavein. Realizing he would not have time to summon aid, Harry went to work desperately with his shovel and about 20 minutes later had his brother's head above ground. A passer summoned police and the victim was revived with a resuscitator. He was reported almost completely recovered today.

CHEST SYSTEM NOT WITHOUT DISADVANTAGE

Objective Considered in Survey of Plan Proposed for Marion

NOT A PANACEA

Inquiry Reveals Difficulties Experienced in Other Ohio Cities

BY MURRAY POWERS
Managing Editor, The Star

The community chest must not be considered a panacea for all the ills in our charity organizations, Marion supporters of the chest plan must remember in looking toward the horizon of unified contribution and distribution.

In Marion some ask if the city will be able to put over a big campaign when so many small drives have been unsuccessful.

It is declared in certain circles that the number of charity organizations will multiply if the community chest plan is once adopted.

Fear Unwieldy Budget

It is feared that organizations in the chest will want to expand their activities to such an extent that demands for more money will stretch the budget beyond its rightful size or create dissatisfaction among the participating groups.

Some organizations question whether they will receive as much money from the chest as they would in drives were they to remain outside the chest.

Will the strong agencies be forced to carry the "weak sisters" in the chest?

Will the various organizations lose their constituencies when they enter the chest? Will the personal interest of their supporters in the past be lost?

Prejudice Question Raised

Will the inclusion of certain organizations in the chest—such as class, social or religious—hamper or handicap the chest campaigns?

And, will the possible failure of the first chest or second chest drive have an unfavorable effect on future campaigns?

One Ohio city, not far from Marion's population, is to stage its third campaign next spring. The future of this city's community chest depends on the response to the third drive.

CLAIM VATICAN AND ITALY NEAR PEACE

Negotiations Between Representatives of Pope and Mussolini Under Way

ROME, Dec. 18—The 58-year-old conflict between the Vatican and the Italian state is believed to be on the eve of settlement, it was learned from authoritative quarters today.

Negotiations between representatives of Pope Pius XI and Premier Mussolini have been under way for many months.

The agreement, which is believed imminent, is expected to be based upon the following principles:

1.—The regulation of the future relations between Italy and the Vatican.

2.—Italy will recognize the papal state as a sovereign entity.

3.—The papal state will be formed of territory upon which the Vatican now stands with surrounding properties.

4.—The papal state will possess at least one railway station instead of a territorial corridor to the sea as first suggested.

5.—All embassies and legations accredited to the vatican will move inside the boundaries of the papal state, Italy will name an ambassador to the Vatican.

6.—No customs duties will be exacted, collection of existing duties being left to the present administration.

7.—The Vatican agrees to exempt money set aside yearly since 1870, which has hitherto been refused.

The building, constructed of Indiana buff sandstone, is an important addition to Marion's list of attractive structures dedicated to religious worship.

DETECTIVE ENTERS PROBE OF MURDER

Sheriffs Unearth Important Evidence in Fearn-Heldman Case

CANTON, Dec. 18—As Ora Slater noted private detective, arrived here today to take over investigation of the Fearn-Heldman case, two deputy sheriffs returned from Lorain, reporting that they had important new evidence on the actions of Wilbur O. Heldman on the night when his wife, Margaret, is supposed to have killed Vernard Fearn.

Heldman says he was canvassing prospects for a furnace concern by which he was employed in Lorain on that night—Dec. 6. The deputies, George Thorn and John McPeak, refused to divulge the information which they have acquired.

Meanwhile, Coroner T. C. McQuate returned from Dubois, Pa., where he held another autopsy over the body of Mrs. Heldman Sunday. He gave it as his opinion, again, that the young woman committed suicide. Her husband, who is held under $25,000 bond in the county jail here, says she shot herself, the night of Dec. 13, as he was bringing her in an automobile from Lorain to surrender her to the sheriff here for the Fearn murder.

A short time before she had confessed to him, he says, that she was the "phantom murderess" who had killed Fearn at the door of his home and then escaped; just a week before. Her motive, according to the reported confession, was an incident between herself and Fearn, which the latter was threatening to reveal to her husband unless she submitted to him.

REFUEL PLANE 1,500 FEET ABOVE CAPITAL

Fifty Gallons of Gasoline Transferred from One Ship to Another

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18—An airplane endurance flight, in which the plane is to be refueled while in the air, will be started by the air service at Los Angeles soon after the new year, it was announced here today.

The announcement followed the successful refueling of an army plane 1,500 feet over the capital, late yesterday.

Fifty gallons of gasoline were transferred from a single-motored ship to a three-motored transport plane. The fuel ship flew above the transport plane and shared its gasoline with the transport below by means of a rubber hose. At one time the two ships were within 17 feet of each other.

May Curtail Bus Service on Unprofitable Routes, Company Official States

Mt. Vernon av. Line Likely To Be Discontinued and Silver st. Schedule Cut Unless Business Picks Up, According to Announcement

A petition asking that bus service be discontinued on Mt. Vernon av. and that the schedule on Silver st. be curtailed may be presented to city council within the near future by the Marion Rapid Transit, Inc., E. J. Hill, vice president of the company, stated today.

Since the start of bus service here on Oct. 6 the bus company has been losing money on both of these routes, Hill said, the Mt. Vernon line being especially unprofitable.

Hope for Improvement

Possibility that cold weather would bring an increase in the passengers on these two routes was seen, however, and Hill stated that the bus company would await developments before taking action.

Although unwilling to curtail its service here unless it is absolutely necessary, the bus company will be forced to petition council that it be allowed to do so if business on these two routes does not show a marked increase, Hill stated.

If it is possible to operate these two routes under the present schedule and at least break even, the bus company will not take steps toward the curtailment of the service, Hill said.

SEVEN OFFICIALS OF CITY ARE ARRESTED

Charged with Conspiracy To Violate Prohibition Law

LEADVILLE, Colo., Dec. 18—The mayor, six other city officials and a woman were among the 25 citizens under arrest here today charged with conspiracy to violate the national prohibition law or with violation of the Volstead act. Warrants have been issued for several more persons, it was understood.

The officials arrested are:

Mayor R. J. McDonald; Dennis O'Neil, city marshal; John Yamnich, acting night captain of police; John Lanich, former constable, justice of the peace court; Douglas H. Platt, city councilman; William Corbett, city councilman; William E. Loppin, city councilman.

Temporary bonds of $2,500 were arranged for practically all arrested.

It was anticipated that many others would be arrested. The warrants said to have been brought here by federal authorities were "stacked two inches thick."

Following the arrest made here, the officers hired a team and wagon to negotiate the deep snow drifts to nearby mining camps where additional arrests were expected.

SEES HOW 1929 CAN BE GOOD RAIL YEAR

Loomis Suggests Roads Be Free from Attention of Lawmakers

BY W. S. COUSINS

(Copyright, 1928, by International News Service)

NEW YORK, Dec. 18—"If the railroads of the country are left reasonably free from the attention of the lawmakers, and the interstate commerce commission is given a free hand in its endeavor to insure the railroads the 'fair return' on the values of their properties as provided by law, the year 1929 should prove a year of satisfactory results," said Edward E. Loomis, president of the Lehigh Valley railroad, to International News Service today.

Loomis, who is one of the best known railroad heads of the country, and chairman of the committee on public relations of the eastern railroad group, furnishes one of the most important contacts between the railroads, the shippers, investors, law makers and the general public, all of which are vitally interested in some phase of the railroad situation.

"The railroads as a whole," said Loomis today, "have never earned the fair return upon their investment that transportation act (of 1920) promised them, yet they face a continued loss of revenue through constant whittling away of their revenue as a result of the steady pressure for rate reductions upon the interstate commerce commission by shipping interests as well as by competition among the carriers themselves for temporarily increased tonnages."

HELD FOR $15,000 BAIL

DAYTON, Dec. 18—Edward Tuohy, 22, Boston, and Jack Green, 20, Chicago, today are in Montgomery county jail here in default of $15,000 bail each on charges of robbery and carrying concealed weapons, respectively. Both men are said by police to be wanted in several other cities. Tuohy is said to have been indicted yesterday at Cincinnati as a member of the gang which looted the Camargo bank at Sladeria, Cincinnati suburb.

ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

CLEVELAND, Dec. 18—Joseph Miner, 25, was in a serious condition at City hospital here today, with a bullet wound in his side, following an attempted suicide late yesterday when detectives took him into custody for allegedly violating his parole from the Ohio State reformatory.

DEATH MYSTERIOUS

CLEVELAND, Dec. 18—Police here today were investigating the death of Norman A. Johnson, 58, manager of the Claim Adjustment Co., whose body was found last night on the floor of his garage, where he had gone to repair his automobile. There was no indication that death resulted from carbon monoxide gas poisoning, and police now believe Johnson died of apoplexy.

BOARDS TO MEET

Commissioners Set Jan. 2 To Organize for Ditch Work

The boards of commissioners of Marion and Morrow counties have set Jan. 2 as the date for organizing to consider the petition for reconstructing the Heimlich ditch. The ditch is located in Richland township in Marion county and in Westfield township in Morrow county.

A petition for widening, deepening and straightening the ditch was filed recently with the board of commissioner here. The organization meeting will be held at 10 o'clock in the Marion county commissioner's office.

19 BAPTISED

Post Revival Service Held at Church of Brethren

Nineteen persons were baptised in a post-revival service last night at First Church of Brethren. A revival which has continued for more than two weeks and resulted in the conversion of 26 persons, closed Sunday night.

The evangelists, Mr. and Mrs Oliver H. Austin, left this morning for Mansfield, from where, after a visit with relatives, they will go to Indiana for their next engagement.

MOTHER AWARDED CUSTODY OF CHILD

Catherine Picket, defendant in a divorce suit brought by Lester Picket, was awarded the custody of their two-year old daughter at a hearing in common pleas court this morning.

After awarding the custody of the child to the mother Judge Scofield ordered the case certified to the probate court for investigation. Attorney Russell Wilhelm represented Mrs. Picket at the hearing. Lester Picket was represented by Attorneys W. P. Moloney and J. D. Williamson.

REV. JAMES MAFFIN GIVES REVIVAL SERMON

The Rev. James Maffin preached at the revival meeting last night at Ella Burke mission, Darius st., taking as his text the twenty third psalm.

"There is no more familiar passage in the Bible," Mr. Maffin said in part, "none from which saints have drawn more encouragement. Its promises are everlasting, its depths unsearchable."

Revival services are held every night.

his Year's Supply of Holiday Booze" To Be s Plentiful as Ever

e Crusades, Cleanups and Wars Against Bootlegging and Racketeering in Full Swing But Facing Uphill Fight, Survey Reveals

Y YORK, Dec. 18—Rum cru-crusades, police graft "clean ead wars on bootlegging and ering are in full swing in s American cities. But it is an uphill and difficult battle dications are that this year's of "holiday booze" will be as ul as ever, a survey by Inter-al News Service disclosed to ird's eye view of the nation, by advices received, would Florida receiving nearly a mil-llars worth of liquor each week the Bahama islands and else-the city of New York getting pre-Christmas supply from the fleet"; Detroit as sort of a dis-ng point for rum smuggled the Canadian border, and in-cities—from coast to coast—ng illegal "booteh" in devious It would also show other cities, such as Philadelphia, East St. Louis, Chicago, Pittsburgh, Kansas City and Cincinnati, in the throes of "sweeping investigation" of one kind or other.

Beer "Wet" Flavor

Nearly all dispatches anent the situation bore a "wet" flavor. The Rocky Mountain region was an exception. Denver reported as follows:

"No major city in this region seems in danger of probes and graft investigations such as have brought some eastern police departments and municipalities into the limelight. Denver, Salt Lake City, Cheyenne, Butte and Santa Fe all report 'normal condition.' In some communities, however, officials admit increased enforcement activities but this is due to the normal increase in the liquor traffic that prevails during the pre-holiday season."

Philadelphia, now in the eighteenth week of its grand jury investigation of racketeering and police graft, reports progress. To date two police captains and three detectives have been convicted and jailed for long prison terms as grafters. So have one ward leader and a state legislator. Two other captains, a ward leader and 52 policemen have been arrested on bribery charges. Three police inspectors, 15 captains and four detectives have been dismissed. An assistant superintendent of police and eight other captains are under suspension awaiting trial.

Philadelphia Situation

Millions of dollars were distributed among members of Philadelphia's corrupt force that were ousted, according to Prosecuting Attorney John Monaghan. Liquor racketeers amassed $10,000,000 in a single year. At least $10,000,000—possibly twice that amount—was paid in "protection money," the stream of gold reaching the itching palms of policemen on their beats, their superiors and ex-ending to the politicians and high police officials. A further shake-up of the Philadelphia police will take place after Jan. 1, it is rumored. The investigation grew out of the gang slaying of Daniel O'Leary and Hughey McLoon, former mascot of the Philadelphia Athletics.

Pittsburgh's investigation has not been so fruitful. Only one "big shot" is in the toils of the law—Al Forney, so-called "king" of Pittsburgh's slot machine racket. He pleaded no defense to charges of conspiracy to violate the prohibition law and was given a short term in prison.

New Deal in Chicago

Chicago, resenting the "black eye" given the city as a result of a long series of gang killings, has called for a new deal. A new state's attorney and police chief are trying to clean up what a short time back was a "wide open town." Not much progress has yet been made. Vice is strongly intrenched in the "black belt" on the south side; cabarets are dispensing booze in wholesale quantities; "beer flats" cater to thousands of thirsty and, according to reports, every other drug store is selling gin at so much a quart. The machine gunners and the beer runners are not operating as openly as formerly. However, the 100th bombing of the year was recorded in Chicago the other day.

Racketeering has challenged the attention of the authorities at Cincinnati, former home of George Remus, one-time "king of the bootleggers." Prosecutor Charles P. Taft, son of former President William Howard Taft, who incidentally, prosecuted Remus, is probing the story of Nathan Shapiro, wealthy race horseman, that he was kidnaped and tortured by racketeers until he surrendered a large sum of money to them. Shapiro said a lighted candle was held against his foot until he could no longer stand the pain.

Roundup in Toledo

At Toledo, O., a roundup of all known bootleggers has been ordered by Safety Director J. R. Crowell in an effort to cooperate with state prohibition officials in probing the alleged wholesale release of prisoners from the Lucas county jail where they were held on liquor charges.

East St. Louis' spectacular liquor investigations came to a climax with the sentencing of Sheriff Leslie R. Roche of Alexander county and 41 other defendants in federal court. The sheriff was given a year and a day in Leavenworth prison and fined $5,000. It was brought out at the trial that the sheriff was a wholesale liquor merchant himself. He pleaded "guilty" to violating the prohibition law.

Kansas City's law enforcement societies and ministers have brought pressure on the city police and federal authorities to clean out speakeasies, following a dramatic raid staged recently by Mrs. H. W. Wilson, "modern Carrie Nation." Armed with a hatchet she wrecked a saloon which she claimed had been selling liquor to her 18-year-old daughter. During the furore that followed government officials charged that 1,600 liquor joints were in operation in Kansas City. After much skirmishing the city police and federal men agreed upon a "truce" and are now endeavoring to stamp out the speak-easy evil.

The situation in the southeast is similar to other "wide open" sections of the country. Booze in huge lots is finding its way into Key West, Miami, Palm Beach and other winter resorts. The liquor is smuggled in from Nassau and Bimini, in the Bahama Islands, and from other small islands that fringe the Florida coast. While the situation is not exactly condoned there is no determined prosecution. In fact, one weekly newspaper in Miami publishes a list of liquor prices, and the bootleggers adhere to these quotations rigidly.

Summing up, it looks like a "wet" Christmas and New Year's—very wet indeed in some sections.

HUNDREDS HERE END COLDS WAY DOCTORS NOW ADVISE

Find Home Use of Hospital Certified Method Ideal for Head Colds, Coughs, Chest Cold

Goes Straight to Seat of Head or Chest Cold and Quickly Drives It Out of System

Urging the need to "play safe in dealing with a cold during this changeable weather," doctors are now advising home use of a pleasant and inexpensive hospital method that has given almost instant relief to vast numbers of people in Marion and vicinity.

Pleasant Taste—Quick Relief —Then Cold Just Disappears

Chas. G. Miller, for example, neglected a head cold several days in the hope it would clear up without treatment. Instead, it started spreading. Realizing that he was sure to feel worse and might risk pneumonia, he called his doctor, who advised double strength doses of Ayer's Pectoral—a hospital certified remedy of wild cherry, terpin hydrate and other ingredients used in treating even the most extreme hospital cases.

Relief began with the first pleasant swallow. He felt the healing, comforting warmth as it was absorbed by his system, loosening up congestion and clearing up his nose, throat and chest. In a few hours the "feverish," "achy," feeling was gone and in a day or so the cold had disappeared entirely.

Mother Ended Child's Cough Before Doctor Arrived

Mrs. C. P. Murphy phoned her doctor late at night when her little daughter, Louise, coughed hard and started running a temperature. He advised her to have a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral sent up immediately from the drug store and promised to call the next day.

Little Louise loved the pleasant taste and it stopped her coughing spell almost instantly. Soon she was sound asleep and awoke the next morning feeling like a different child. The treatment was continued as the doctor directed and in a day or so she was out playing—as well as ever.

Note: Other cases reported daily—all certified by attending physicians.

Ayer's Pectoral quickly penetrates and heals inflamed linings of the air passages. Absorbed by the system it helps allay congestion and drive out the cold from the nose passages, throat and chest.

Just a few pleasant spoonfuls of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral now and you, too, will feel like a different person tomorrow. At all druggists—60c and, twice as much in $1.00 hospital size.

Addition of Antique Furniture Increases Interest in Historic Old Marion Home

WITH a view to making even more perfect in every detail an already fascinating and historically interesting old Marion home, William C. Beatty, furniture dealer, began the collection of antiques about three years ago.

Since that time Mr. Beatty has added to his collection several rare old pieces of period furniture, which, rejuvenated, are now in use in his home, 202 South Vine st.

Older residents of Marion are already familiar with the thrilling tales which circulate about the Beatty house—one of the oldest Marion homes, erected in 1855 by Charles Baker, son of Eber Baker, founder of the city of Marion.

The Beatty house contains numerous secret passages and panels in and about its attics and eaves, which serve as the basis for the report that the home before the Civil war served as an "underground railroad station." Slaves are said to have been concealed in the secret passages over the old house until such a time as they could be moved onto the next station.

There is also a story to the effect that a tunnel leads from the old house to somewhere in the vicinity of King's lake.

The rooms on the lower floor are massive with high ceilings, numerous doors and shuttered windows of early architecture. It is for these rooms that Mr. Beatty began the collection of furniture which has resulted in the addition of several valuable pieces.

Among the most beautiful pieces in the collection is a large mahogany sofa, a specimen of early American furniture which has been re-covered and placed in the Beatty parlor. It previously had been stored in an Illinois barn.

Another valuable antique is an old cherry bureau, inlaid with holly wood, which was converted into a desk. There is also an antique bureau in use in the upper rooms and a mahogany table in the parlor.

The majority of the other antiques which Mr. Beatty has collected during the past three years have been placed in his furniture store, 401 West Center st.

The Beatty house, which is fitted out as nearly as possible in furniture that corresponds with its particular period of architecture, has been occupied by four Marion families, the last 12 years by Mr. and Mrs. Beatty and previous to that time by the Houghton, Johnson and Baker families. At one time purchase of the house was considered by the City Federation of Women's clubs, the plan being to converting it into headquarters for local women's organizations.

crowds. Dr. Rockwood would eliminate crowds as much as possible on account of the increasing number of influenza cases. He stated there have been four deaths in Cleveland from the disease and approximately 200 new cases reported, bringing the total sufferers to approximately 5,000.

A juror in a murder trial was taken down with the disease and the case was forced to be reheard. There are 30 cases among prisoners in the Cuyahoga county jail and 10 deputy sheriffs are ill.

Death at Massillon

One influenza death was reported from Massillon. There are 1,000 reported ill with the flu in Sebring. One hundred students at Oberlin college, Oberlin, have been ordered home. Dr. C. D. Barnett, Lorain county health commissioner, states the influenza is spreading in Lorain county and that the influenza is mixed with measles among the children.

Twenty-five per cent of the student body at Akron university are reported flu sufferers. The institution will remain open, however. A better condition is reported as a whole from the rubber city.

L. A. Budahn, superintendent of Fostoria schools, reported an absence of 388 from the public schools, but does not fear an epidemic.

Varying reports of the number of new cases of influenza were received today from Youngstown, Canton, Mansfield, Columbus, Dayton and Cincinnati. The situation in none of these cities is considered alarming and with the cold weather, it is not anticipated the number will reach the average expectancy.

Dr. Robbins told International News Service today that in his opinion boards of education over the state were using good judgment in advancing the regular Christmas vacations and closing schools in districts where there are large numbers of flu sufferers.

DAM BILL MAY BE SENT TO COOLIDGE

House Expected To Accept Amendments Made in Senate

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18—The Swing-Johnson Boulder Canyon dam bill may be laid before President Coolidge for signature tomorrow.

The house was expected to adopt a motion offered by Representative Smith, Republican of Idaho, chairman of the house irrigation committee, to concur to senate amendments to the Swing-Johnson bill, which would complete the bill's legislative travels.

Should opponents of the measure defeat the proposal for concurrence, the bill would be sent to conference to iron out differences between the senate and house.

Leaders in last year's fight in the house against the bill said that they would oppose acceptance of senate amendments, but would not attempt to filibuster.

COMMISSION SETS PHONE VALUATION

Action Today Brings Local Rate Controversy Near Closing Stage

Controversy over Marion's telephone rates, in progress since 1925, drew near a close today when the state utilities commission at Columbus announced that valuation of the local property had been definitely fixed at $1,170,557.24.

This valuation, established tentatively Aug. 1, 1927, was made final in the commission's ruling today and will be the basis of rates to be announced soon by the commission.

In making its decision, the commission overruled protests filed by the city of Marion and officials of the Ohio Associated Telephone Co., owner of the local property. The protests are reported to have been filed mainly for the purpose of giving both sides the right of appeal when the rates are fixed.

The case has been before the commission since 1925, when the city of Marion filed protest against the Marion County Telephone Co.'s new schedule of rates. During progress of proceedings before the commission, collected under the protested rates have been made under bond filed by the company to guarantee refunds to subscribers in the event that the schedule is lowered.

The valuation as fixed today applies to the company's property as it existed on May 1, 1925.

MAN'S LEGS SEVERED IN ERIE YARDS HERE

Walter Tanner, Joplin, Mo., Falls Beneath Wheels of Train

Walter Tanner, 30, of Joplin, Mo., suffered the loss of both legs just below the knee when he slipped beneath a westbound Erie freight train at the west end of the Erie yards near the Sand creek bridge at 10:30 a. m. today. He is believed to have attempted to board the train and in so doing fell beneath its wheels.

Although the Erie officials here have no definite information, they believe Tanner to be a transient "bumming" his way west, as he was said to be trespassing on the Erie right-of-way at the time the accident occurred.

Tanner was rushed to the City hospital in the M. H. Gunder invalid car. His condition is reported as critical.

COMMITTEE SETS ASIDE REAPPORTIONMENT ACTION

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18—Action on reapportionment legislation was postponed until after the Christmas recess by the house census committee today.

Five committee members, Representatives Johnson, Republican of Washington; Jacobstein, Democrat of New York, Clancy, Republican of Michigan, Peavy, Republican of Wisconsin and White, Republican of Kansas, were unable to appear because of illness. Some of them were said to be threatened with influenza.

RAIL HEAD, 61, TO WED 26-YEAR-OLD WOMAN

NEW YORK, Dec. 18—Arthur C. Needles of Roanoke, Va., 61-year-old president of the Norfolk and Western railway, will today wed Edith Clarke, 26, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Clarke of Union City, Pa. The ceremony will be performed at St. Bartholomew's church.

Needles, who has been a widower since 1923, was born in Baltimore. Miss Clarke now lives in New York.

MISSOURI CONGRESSMAN DIES IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Dec. [illegible]

If I Were A Man | If I Were A Girl

BY JILL

I WOULDN'T be an old lady about my health. I wouldn't wear rubbers if it rained a few drops, or take along an umbrella whenever a cloud showed in the sky. I wouldn't make a medicine closet out of my top desk drawer, and carry a box of pills around in my vest pocket. If I sneezed, I wouldn't immediately clutch my head and feel my pulse and groan dejectedly, in the firm conviction that I was "getting something." And I wouldn't read all the medical journals I could find and promptly develop every symptom they mentioned. If someone asked me casually: "How are you?" I wouldn't go into detail about that pain in the head I had last night and the queer spots I saw before my eyes. The question was merely a polite gesture and he didn't care anyway. Also, I'd remember that no girl likes a crank—and a fancied invalid is even worse than a real one.

BY JACK

I WOULDN'T want a man who didn't want me. Some girls just never will say die! You can't make them realize you don't want to see them again, that you aren't interested in them any more, that when you said goodbye you really meant just that. If a man had shown me he didn't care for me, I'd have some pride—I wouldn't try to get him back again.

I wouldn't telephone and ask him to come and see me, I wouldn't drop him little notes saying how lonely I was without him, I wouldn't try to meet him "accidentally" by hovering around places where I thought he might be.

I'd realize that if he really wanted to see me, he'd make the opportunity for himself. From the fact that he didn't telephone or come around I'd gather that he didn't want to. Nothing makes a man so uncomfortable as the girl who keeps on pestering him after his interest has dulled.

And men hate to be made uncomfortable.

Meditations OF A Married Woman

BY HELEN ROWLAND

We Modern Women

A WOMAN'S idea of a sartorial triumph, is a hat that is smart enough to make all the women hate her, and becoming enough to make all the men love her.

Getting a man to propose, these days, is like getting a small boy to apologize. It CAN be done—but you're all worn out by the time you have wrung an admission from him.

With a little canned chicken, a few sprigs of lettuce and a big imagination, any modern woman can serve a wonderful "home-cooked luncheon."

An old-fashioned man is one who thinks that the fact that he has offered to let a girl pick up his things and keep his dinner hot for the rest of his life, is the only proof of his love that he need give her.

If the salesgirl treats you like a friend and an equal, it's a store; if she serves you coldly but politely, it's a shop; if she acts like a captive princess, who wonders how you got in, it's a "shoppe."

Father used to heave a sigh of relief and start saving to buy himself a new overcoat when he got daughter married and "off his hands"; now, he merely heaves a sigh and starts moving up to pay for her divorce.

For some unfathomable reason, the average man would rather be on the "waiting-list" of a popular girl than on the [illegible] kind who would "make him an ideal wife."

MAN WHO "SOLD" BRIDGE GIVEN LIFE SENTENCE

NEW YORK, Dec. 18—The man who "sold" the Brooklyn bridge and "lots in City Hall park on numerous occasions during the past half century was taken to Sing Sing today for the rest of his life. The veteran "Con" man, George C. Parker, 68, was convicted of larceny as a fourth offender.

The last offense was cashing a worthless check for $150 in a restaurant.

ARGUMENT ON MOTION POSTPONED INDEFINITELY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18—Argument on the government motion to bring former Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall to trial on Jan. 14 for bribery in connection with the Elk Hills naval oil reserve lease to E. L. Doheny was indefinitely postponed in District of Columbia supreme court today.

Defense counsel said Fall's physical condition would not permit him to come to Washington in the dead of winter.

The world's largest air nitrogen fixation plant, in Germany, now having an annual production of nitrogen exceeding 500,000 tons, will increase its capacity by 36,000 tons a year.

ATTACK AGENCIES GIVING GIRLS WORK

Reveal Young Women Have Fallen into Hands of Alleged Resort Owners

NEW YORK, Dec. 18—Shady employment agencies in New York City, Cincinnati and Baltimore—and in towns in Pennsylvania and Connecticut—came under federal scrutiny today following the revelation that young girls fell into the hands of alleged white slave traffickers after they had applied for positions as "hostesses."

The federal investigation is a sequel to the arrest of Maj. Robert Kent, Jr., former army officers and "gentleman of leisure," and four young women in a raid in an 18-room roadhouse at Glendale, N. Y. Kent is in the Tombs in default of $10,000 bail, waiting to appear before the federal grand jury on charges of conspiracy to violate the Mann act. The women are in Jefferson Market prison, also awaiting grand jury action.

Federal authorities said they believe that Kent was in league with employment agencies here and in other cities. A packet of correspondence seized at the roadhouse indicated the girls were hired as night club hostesses, with promises of good times and then kept prisoners.

The proprietor of a New York City agency admitted to federal officials that he sent girl applicants to Kent.

HOOVER ELATED AS PEACE IS FORECAST

President-Elect Enroute to Rio de Janeiro Aboard Utah

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Dec. 18—Elated over the brighter prospects for a peaceful settlement of the Bolivian-Paraguayan territorial controversy, President-elect Herbert Hoover resumed his South American goodwill journey today.

The Hoover party is enroute to Rio De Janeiro, Brazil, its last stopping place in South America. The U. S. warship Utah with the Hoover party on board is due at Rio de Janeiro Friday.

Uruguay's hospitality made a deep impression upon Mr. Hoover, although this is a small country, Mr. Hoover expressed the sincere belief that it has a brilliant future.

A detachment of the presidential guard cavalry escorted Mr. and Mrs. Hoover to the pier where they boarded a Uruguayan vessel for the eight-mile ride to the Utah's anchorage.

Crowds cheered and bands played the American's and Uruguayan national anthems.

MOVE TO REQUEST BACK PAY FOR LIBRARIANS

COLUMBUS, Dec. 18—Plans are on foot, it was stated today, to request the Ohio legislature to appropriate several thousands of dollars as back pay for about 14 employes of the state library, who have been working without financial compensation since last August when the library was reopened. It was closed in July, 1927, as a result of Gov. Vic Donahey's veto of the item in the big appropriation bill, passed at the state legislature session two years ago, providing for payment of operating expenses of the state library.

FORMER JESSICA BROWN WEDS EMBASSY ATTACHE

LONDON, Dec. 18—Lady Northesk, formerly Miss Jessica Brown of Buffalo, N. Y., a Ziegfeld Follies beauty, was married here today to Vivian Cornelius, a wealthy young Englishman, and honorary attache to the British embassy in Brussels.

The ceremony, which was quiet, took place in the Prince's Row registry office. It was followed by a benedictory service in the savoy chapel.

EXONERATE PATROL

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Dec. 18—The members of the coast guard patrol who shot and killed Carl Anderson, an alleged rum runner of Lewiston, on Thanksgiving morning, stood exonerated today. Coroner Frank T. Carmer of Newfane, announced last night following an inquest that he believed the coast guardsmen were within their rights in firing on "The Bug," Anderson's cabin cruiser, on Lake Ontario.

WHO STOKES THE FURNACE?

IN the home there is usually one member of the family who is vitally interested in what kind of coal is used. That member is the one who stokes the furnace.

In the country and smaller towns, where men can get home for lunch, it is likely to be the head of the house, or his son. In the city, women do the job in a great many instances.

Clean, long-burning coal, for instance, is alluring to any member of the family. Buy Anchor, the clean-clothes, labor-saving coal.

Vienna school pupils are being taught how to avoid being run over in the streets, and for the life of us we can not decide whether the youngsters are being taught to stay indoors, or grow wings.

On the last eastern voyage of the White Star liner, Olympic, radio news pictures were printed in the ship's daily paper for the first time aboard a vessel at sea; the service being almost faultless. The world has been moving along a bit since Marconi developed the wireless.

The senate has passed the Boulder dam bill providing for the expenditure of $165,000,000, but as the sum of $25,000,000 is to be withheld for flood control, it will hardly be proper to speak of it as more than a $140,000,000 raid on the public treasury.

Mrs. Paul Dubonnet, a New York authority on woman's dress, says any woman can dress nicely on $10,000 a year exclusive of her expenditures for furs and jewels. We husbands might be able to accomplish a great work of economy were we to bring this expert opinion to the attention of our better halves.

Now it is said that Police Commissioner Warren, of New York City, whose resignation was forced, was made the goat of the Tammany organization. Considering the fact that Tammany was held out during the recent presidential campaign as a sort of benovolent organization it certainly has necessitated the utilization of an awful lot of goats.

According to Commissioner Doran there are no less than 10,000 people in Washington with diplomatic liquor privileges. We never for a minute imagined the embassies and consulates in Washington were crowded, and packed, and jammed like that.

So John L. Lewis has been unanimously chosen to succeed himself as head of the United Mine Workers of America. It begins to look as though he has carried out his promise to drive the anarchistic and communistic elements out of the Mine Workers' organization.

An inmate of the Nebraska state prison, committed for bank robbery, is said to have perfected a device which eliminates all static on radio sets. If the device is all that is claimed for it, his bank-robbing days are over. He is in position to make money faster than he can steal it.

Gloria, the young daughter of the late Enrico Caruso, has been awarded by a New Jersey court two-thirds of approximately $1,000,000 paid by one talking machine company for reproductions of her father's voice. And yet some will claim that Americans do not appreciate real art!

Major General Edward Jadwin, army chief of engineers, announces that work on the $325,000,000 Mississippi flood control project may be delayed considerably by the cupidity of the owners of lands needed for the floodways above New Orleans who are demanding ten times the value of their holdings. It was ever thus. Cupidity is ever in evidence when chance to milk the government is offered.

Mrs. Kate Merrick, London's so-called night club queen, released from jail two weeks ago after serving a sentence of six months, is back in jail again for selling liquor without a license. Reforming night club hostesses doesn't seem to be any more of a success over in London than here in the United States, but the English plan of procedure has this over ours, so long as the hostesses are in jail they are not dispensing the liquid poison.

Go Home for Christmas.

When you are figuring on your Christmas gifts for mother and dad, don't do it at the expense of omitting to go home.

If you desired, you could make the trip in the time allotted for the holiday.

But you have not seriously considered going home because there are so many things going on in the city.

You feel that gifts should satisfy your parents.

And they do appreciate them greatly but a visit to them means more.

Perhaps you know mother wants to see you, but dad is not so anxious; you are sure, for he seldom says much about it.

But you are wrong there—both look forward eagerly to Christmas because of the possibility that you may come home.

When sons and daughters are absent, Christmas is not so interesting to parents—something is lacking—lonely hearts ache.

Get home Christmas if you possibly can.

Nothing you could give would bring so much joy to your parents as to have you with them that day.

Get into the real Christmas spirit this year; try to make others happy.

If you are right this will add to your own happiness.

No Pomp for Hoover or Cooper.

Time was here in the United States when the president and governors were inaugurated with all the ceremony that is associated with the coronation of a king. That time seems to have passed. The brilliant balls of generations agone have largely disappeared with the festivities surrounding the induction of a president or governor into office. The rule of today seems to be to make changes in business methods, minus elaborate social functions.

President-elect Hoover and Governor-elect Cooper have announced they will follow the tradition which President Harding inaugurated, and which was carried out by President Coolidge. Their inaugurations, they propose, shall be as simple and devoid of display as possible. This means that the flubdub, the parades and the balls and the holiday and money-making that have featured many other inaugurations at Washington and at Columbus will be conspicuous by their absence.

Modern departures from old conventions are justified by the new conceptions of popular government that have come with the years. People no longer worship or revere individuals, though love and respect for their leaders are undiminished. They look for results through the office and expect the man who has been honored with it to furnish them. Business efficiency is emphasized and the forms and formalities of the governmental means through which they are affected are more incidental than formerly was the case.

With economy and efficiency, then, the order of the day in individual and economic life, it is fitting that the precedent in plain republicanism which has been established by the nation's great men should be enduring.

"Marriage is a perilous adventure for wise adults," says J. A. R. Cairns; "for babies it is a very serious step." It can hardly be that Mr. Cairns has much esteem for the view that there's no fool like an old fool.

"The nations are sharpening their knives," says David Lloyd George, "on the very stones of the Temple of Peace." Just at present Mr. Lloyd George seems to be greatly worried over the possibility that world peace may be broken, but something like ten years ago, if our memory serves us correctly, he was demanding the head of the German kaiser on a platter.

"Yes, Yes."

Such is the reply of the Italian senate when Mussolini speaks. Some will argue that it is the fashion for Italian senates; others might place the cause in the recent stirring up of the dust of the ancient days of Caesar.

Be the cause as it may, the Duce urges ratification of a bill which sets up the Fascist Grand Council as a constitutional part of the government, and the senate votes, "Yes, yes." The king may think himself a part of the Italian government; the senate, after six years of "Yes" may yet delude itself into thinking that it serves a useful purpose, but the fact remains there is one government in Italy—the Fascist party; and the Fascist party is one man—Mussolini. The French king of old might say, "I am the state." Mussolini may say it too—and with even more truth.

Why, we may ask, just why will a people endure such a government in these days? The answer is not hard to find. They endure it for the same reason than a bank or any other corporation will endure a tyrannical president if—if—he gets results. This word "results" is Mussolini's middle name.

Accustomed as the Italian people are to democratic procedures of government, schooled as are its leaders in the arts of undermining and upsetting corrupt and undesired parties, everybody seems willing not only to step aside and let this dictator tear loose, but more than that, with few exceptions, they clear the way for him. Any man who could stop Bolshevism in its tracks, put the skids under scheming politicians and grafters, set in motion agencies which would rehabilitate a war-torn country and place it upon a sound financial basis, and all the while keep busy at social amelioration—that man will be endured even though his name be Despot.

A Roman cable says that 110 persons, some of them women, have recently been sent into exile by a secret Fascist tribunal. Somebody should get Mr. Mussolini off into a corner and gently hint to him that such acts by secret tribunals are a heap sight more dangerous than fooling around with the business end of a mule.

Madrid newspapers are aroused over the report that an American has bought the Palace of Pleyes de Toro and proposes to move it to this country. Great Scott! Why will Americans pay out real money for old European ruins when they can build something really useful over here for half the cost of bringing the old ruins over?

The $30,000,000 suit against the estate of John Jacob Astor by descendants of his one-time partner, John Nicholas Emerick, has been dismissed. Here's one respect in which hard-working spreaders of joy and sunshine in paragraphs have it all over men in business. No matter how many millions they accumulate, there is no near heirs of a partner to hob up and sue them or their estate for a division. They always go it alone.

A Chicago woman, a former assistant state's attorney of Cook county, has been fleeced over in Paris out of $1,200 in cash and jewelry valued at $5,000, by two French confidence men whose acquaintance she made aboardship, who worked the old worn-eaten game of leaving her to watch a bag containing old newspapers while they made off with her valuables. The late Phineas T. Barnum was right, but we did think that life in Chicago would preclude Chicagoans from falling for a swindle of the antiquity of that.

"HEAVY—HEAVY!"

Child's First Teeth.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

When the baby is born it is without teeth. One by one, or rather two by two, or in groups, they appear. The "cutting" or "eruption" of the teeth follows pretty closely certain rules.

The teeth are in the jaw-bones all the time, but it takes time for them to develop in size and strength. In short, like the body itself, they must grow. When they get big enough, they crowd through the soft bone and finally cut their way through the gum.

The first of the teeth to appear are the two at the front and center of the lower jaw. These are called the "lower central incisors," and they appear when the baby is from six to nine months of age.

After the lower central pair come the upper incisors, not only the central ones, but also one on each side of the central pair; four in all. These are cut at about the twelfth month.

Then to match the upper group there appear two more lower incisors. By the time the baby is fourteen or fifteen months old there are eight front teeth, four on each jaw.

Within the next six or eight months a tooth appears at each side of the lower and upper groups. These four new teeth are called the "stomach teeth," or the "eye teeth," or the "canine teeth."

Next we find a double tooth appearing at the back of each jaw on both sides. Later the vacant spaces are filled in and by the time the child is two or two and one-half years old he is the proud possessor of twenty teeth.

Once in a great while a baby is born with a tooth or two. In some instances the teeth are cut very early and in others much later than the average time I have given.

The time of the teething is determined by the degree of nourishment and the general welfare of the child. So long as the child is strong and vigorous we need not worry about the teeth or about the teething. Many averages are broken by Nature's own way of dealing with the individual problems.

The twenty teeth I have described are the first teeth and in the course of time these will be replaced by the permanent teeth. At the age of six years or thereabouts the first of these appear. They are "double teeth" and are placed back of the baby molars. Sometimes they are called the "six-year molars."

Just because the first teeth are not to remain in is no reason why they should be neglected. They must be kept in repair so they will not drop out before the second teeth are ready. They are needed to help the development of their successors.

Cavities in the baby teeth require attention. If neglected, the decay may find its way through the first underlying permanent tooth.

The child should be taught to care for his teeth and the parents should see to it that the baby teeth are kept clean and in good condition.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

M. T. Q—How can I gain in weight?

2—What is the cause of granulated eyelids?

3—What is the cause of "nightmares"?

A—Proper dieting and deep breathing is the secret. You should eat nourishing foods and have plenty of sleep and rest.

2—This condition is generally due to some infection. Bathe with mild solution of boracic acid several times a day and apply one per cent. yellow oxide of mercury ointment at night. However, have the eyes tested to see if glasses are needed.

3—Very often this is due to indigestion or intestinal disturbances. Proper diet and correct exercise will alleviate this trouble. For further information send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

L. F. Q—How can I get rid of intestinal worms?

2—What can I do for falling hair? My hair is very dry.

3—Do you advise a nose and throat spray for treating nasal catarrh?

A—This requires special treatment for children and grown-ups. For full particulars send a stamped, addressed envelope and repeat your question.

2—I would advise a stimulating ointment. Send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

3—Yes, a spray is essential. Other treatment is advisable, too. For details send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.—Copyright, 1928, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Editorial Comment.

A VICIOUS DOCTRINE.

A more dangerous doctrine than that our foreign-born population is not amenable to our laws because it has been accustomed to other laws aboard, which has been set up by prosecuting attorneys in at least two counties of this state, would be hard to devise. At least 6,000,000 men and women now domiciled in this country were born in other lands; and if they are not taught to respect and obey our laws, we might as well give up trying to enforce those laws against the balance of the population.

The principle involved is broader than prohibition. A short time ago a schoolgirl in New Jersey accused a schoolmate of having wronged her. She was a Sicilian; so her father slipped a gun in his belt, walked over to the boy's home and shot him dead. The girl's mother could not understand why her husband was locked up and charged with murder, when he had done only "what any self-respecting Sicilian would have done under the circumstances," while his lawyer declared that no jury in the world would convict him, whether the girl's story was true or not! The vicious disposition to exonerate killers from hot-tempered countries has been displayed in more states than New Jersey.

Are Chinese in this country above the law against polygamy because in China it is permissible to have more than one wife? Are white-slavers and dope vendors to be excused from the rigors of American law because their operations are not so severely punished in the lands from which they came? They would be under the doctrine that aliens coming to the United States bring their own laws with them.

Americans living abroad soon discover that they must respect the laws of the countries in which they reside. Aliens coming here must be taught to obey ours.—Detroit Free Press.

Big South African Problem.

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

Nowhere on earth are there more problems presented by the peoples of a community than in South Africa. There is the living example of the "house divided." For not only do the white people quarrel among themselves, difference in nationality and memories of past quarrels contributing largely, but the many races represented among the natives, each with its own particular grievance, make government difficult.

However, many of the disputes have been settled and South Africa is well on the way to a more definite union.

The student of the South African problem can get a very concrete idea of just what the government has to cope with in Cape Town. Here he will see the natives in their own "element" as it were. Here he will realize that the white man being the skilled worker, the overseer, the native has little chance to better himself. Yet many of the natives have a high type of intelligence and deserve better things than manual labor on the farms and in the mines.

This then, is the problem the government has to cope with: To better the condition of the natives, spiritually and actually, at the same time leave the whites the "masters of the situation."—Copyright, 1928, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Dinner Stories.

The famous football player was pacing the floor at midnight trying to soothe his yelling offspring. This, instead of placating the infant, seemed only to make him yell the louder, and at last the footballer remarked to his wife:

"If the captain of the team were to see me now, he'd give me a good slating."

"Whatever for?" she asked.

"Because," came the reply, "I've lost control of the bawl."

"Were you shocked by the play?"

"Yes," answered Miss Cayenne. "But after getting past the charge of six dollars a seat at the box office, anything else that might happen seemed easy."

Customer—"You're sure one bottle will cure a cold?"

Clerk—"It must, sir. Nobody's ever come back for a second."

"I had a sure tip on the stock market yesterday."

"That so? How much did you lose?"

Behold, thou shalt call a nation that thou knowest not, and nations that knew not thee shall run unto thee, because of the Lord thy God, and for the Holy One of Israel; for He hath glorified thee.—Isaiah 55:5.

Prayer—Our heritage is Thee, O God, is exceeding great.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, Dec. 18—Save at the Metropolitan opera, the hired claque is almost a memory. In the theater there was only one evidence of the horny-handed pests this season. When the Metropolitan gives them the air—and it should pronto—amusement lovers will offer prayerful thanks.

Their vulgar and ostentatious outbursts at opera has been an insult to the intelligence of patrons for years. In the theater the claque was not so annoying. It was mostly friends of the players and producers and not disturbers hired for so much a night.

Nevertheless it was all a pain in the neck. It was not unusual for applause at a theater to hold up a show for five minutes just to pay tribute to some one whose party was encompassed in the line: "Madam will receive you." Opening performances ran until after midnight. A Follies premiere once lasted until 3 a. m.

Theatrical performances are now timed to the split second. It is a heavy expense otherwise. On opening nights the performance may run ten or fifteen minutes overtime, but rarely longer. After the first showing a first-class play runs as smoothly as a well-regulated watch.

In other days "stealing a bow" was an elegant sop to the actor's vanity. There were some who would carry a banjo to the footlights to give a fake idea they could play it just for an extra bow. It was so irritatingly overdone that a storm of applause trailed off into an outbreak of hisses.

In musical comedies and revues today encores are rarely permitted. And a single bow is the limit. To frustrate all this foolishness, producers provide a quick change at high speed and the show toddles merrily on. All of which is tough on the performer, but dandy for customers.

In dramas, the curtain is often lifted after the second act so players may receive their accolade and the assemblage on the stage is thinned down until the star or featured players take their cherished bow alone. The old time curtain speech is restricted to first nights.

A hotel snooper discovers after an investigation of 100 New York hotels that the smallest dining-room in each is invariably the best patronized. Another example of the metropolitan herd instinct.

In a speakeasy row between two gorillas, one of the belligerants cried: "Listen, sweetheart, take this as a keepsake." Then with a knife he slashed a six-inch gash across his adversary's face. And the identity of a gray-haired newspaper man who reached a corner six blocks away in one minute flat is none of your business.

Big banks are called upon more than other institutions to provide posts for relatives and friends of good customers. It seems almost every one has a few cast-off relatives they would like to have sit at pretty desks in banks. A banker tells me he has more than a thousand applicants for such positions on file. And he added a trifle gloomily: "In many instances we are almost forced to provide a place or lose a valuable customer."

There is a type of New Yorker who grows superior in telling of a meal he has enjoyed in various white-tiled restaurants around town. He gives the patronizing impression of indulging a lark—a gastronomical summing experiment. He does not seem to know the wealthiest people are frequent patrons of moderate-priced eating places serving plain and well-cooked dishes. Nothing, they say, is more monotonous than fancy food. Within the week I saw Helen Gould and her husband dining in a side-street tearoom. Wall Street millionaires perch on stools at those counter places with big shiny coffee urns. In a chili joint recently I saw two theatrical men with real estate holdings in the millions. The rich eat where they please without excuse. It is the four-flusher, trying to maintain a front, whose manner is apologetic.

Of what with an elopment in the family, an extra tax assessment, a sudden step off the curb to a banana skin, and God knows what all, I've turned wanly and eagerly to a circular reading: "Do as we tell you five minutes a day and you'll bubble with joy." I have reached that pathetic willingness to smile through the tears and do anything. I'll even admire the Paramount building.—Copyright, 1928, by the McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

Twenty Years Ago.

It was Friday.

John Beaver, age 66, died at his home northeast of the city from injuries sustained in a fall from a haystack. The accident occurred about 10 days prior to his death.

O. A. Busard, president of the city board of public service, died of paralysis at his home, 635 North State street. He was sixty-eight years of age.

G. Farr Larle resigned his position with the Klinefelter grocery to enter employment of the Isaac Eberly Co., Columbus wholesale grocery house, as a traveling salesman.

C. A. Curtis was a business visitor in Fostoria.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Pinyard at their home on Fairground street.

When Mabel Lester, of Bucyrus, was preparing to appear on the stage of the Family theater, now the Orpheum, she was stopped on order from Probate Judge Foster, who insisted that she furnish proof that her age was over sixteen years. The girl obtained a certificate of her age from the Crawford county judge and was permitted to appear on the theater program the following day. She appeared in a song and dance act.

Astronomy in a Savings Bank.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

A savings bank in the Borough of Brooklyn, constructing a modern building of aspiring altitude for itself proposes to spend $150,000 for an "astronomical ceiling" on which will be depicted a representation of a portion of the zodiac. It will be based on pictures in Burritt's Atlas, which has delighted several generations of amateur astronomers, and is to be done in golden Venetian glass mosaic.

"Sic itur ad astra"—such is the way to the stars—is not a bad motto to encourage thrift, and that motto seems to be implied in the selection of this ceiling adornment. In fact, astronomical symbolism has been gaining ground of late, and stars, constellations, planets, comets, meteors, and telescopes are playing a growing part in both the art of decoration and that of advertising.

What could be finer in influence than pictures showing the association of the stars with human ideals of beauty, of heroism, of aspiration, and above all, of super-terrestial destiny? All men will not lift their eyes to the heavens as they are in nature; but many will turn from a pictured dome to see the reality in a new light. The constellated sky is a great gallery in which are hung creations of the human imagination whose interest is at once historical, aesthetic and scientific.

Perhaps there is a special significance to be attached to the equiping of a house of money with an astronomical ceiling. Thus to the spirit of worldly thrift appeals the eternal call of the stars, the voice of the vast universe in which the earth is lost, the voices of universes beyond the universe.

When the grandson of Scipio Africanus—as told in Cicero's beautiful "Somnium Scipionis"—sat upon the scintillant arch of the Milky Way, beside the shades of his father and grandfather, contemplating the marvels of the universe, and listening to the "music of the sphere," the fetters of his earthly experiences still hung upon him. For the great Africanus, diverting his thoughts fixed, like his eyes, on the distant speck that was our planet, said to him:

"How long will thy soul continue to attach itself to the earth? Dost thou not see into what temples thou hast come?"

Then the younger Scipio, moved by the stupendous spectacle and by the words of his grandsire, telling him that all these celestial glories constitute the "homum aeternum"—enternal home—of men who make themselves worthy of it, exclaimed:

"O Scipio Africanus, if it be true that the services rendered to one's country open a way to the heavens, although from my youth I have marched in my father's steps and your, and have not, perhaps, lacked a share of your glory, yet now, at the sight of this prize, I wish to redouble my zeal and my efforts."

Whereupon the shade of Africanus replied:

"Yes, exert thyself, and know that thou art not mortal, but only this body of thine is mortal. Thou art not this form which may be pointed out with the finger, but that which makes a man is the soul—men's. Know, therefore, that thou art god—Scio igitur to esse deum. For he who acts, who perceives, who foresees, who directs and governs and moves this body, over which, he has been set as master, even as the supreme God is master over this world, is himself god. And as the eternal God moves the world, which is in part corruptible, so the immortal soul moves the perishable body."

There you have pagan faith at its highest, and, like Christian faith, it points to the heavens, and thence draws inspiration together with wonder. We can not be roofed with too many ceilings bearing the images of these celestial symbols.—Copyright, 1928, International Feature Service, Inc.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

It begins to look as though flying would come to be the safest of all forms of travel. The earth is getting pretty thickly spread with one thing and another and it takes a lot of dodging to beat the incessant game. Comes now the invention of the Goliath of parachutes, eighty-four feet in diameter and capable of holding a whole airplane and some passengers aloft. Let something go wrong with the airplane of the near future and all the passengers can climb into the parachute and slip down to the nearest convenient pasture.

D. E. Fulton established the flying field near Akron where the workshops of the Goodyear-Zeppelin corporation will be located. His dream of great dirigibles manufactured in this country is coming true. An interesting thing to know about Fulton is that he quit his job some years ago to make his first flight. He believed in the future of lighter-than-air craft. He couldn't get the time off to experiment, so he gave up a regular place. Takes nerve to do that. A man must be sure he is right. Our lack of nerve to do that very thing, however, may make all the difference between success and failure.

The hush-a-bye days are gone forever. Two Toronto university teachers have been investigating the sleep habits of children. Few children pass into the land of nod to the soothing croon of a lullaby. And the cradle rocking age is past. Science has no regrets, but the memories of old songs when the dark came down will linger.

We learn from these experienced sleep investigators that "sleeping in the daytime has no effect on the night sleep of infants, but too much daytime sleep interferes with the night rest of older children. Between the third and fourth year of life the child should not be permitted to sleep longer than about one and a half hours in the daytime. More than this not only interferes with night rest, but also deprives the child of fresh air and play activity that he needs."

There seems in this modern age to be a pretty general tendency to attach less importance to sentimental appeal and more to importance to a perfectly scientific or efficient approach. And to a considerable extent this is as it should be. But let's not lose all our perspective. Let's not get out of balance. The whole man is the normal man. He is a creature of sentiment and emotion as well as a creature of mind and muscle. Denying sentiment, denying tender emotions, is denying a part of ourselves. What we feel is important, as well as what we think.

Notes of Labor.

Approximately 5,000,000 wage-earners in the United States are organized in trade unions.

The Federation of Labor of Bolivia, organized less than a decade ago, now has over 5,000 members.

Cincinnati is believed to be the only large city in the United States that has gone a year without a strike.

The Actors' Equity association, which is the trade union of the theatrical profession, now has 7,500 members.

Development of machinery in the window glass industry in recent years has practically eliminated the hand methods of production.

The Manitoba workmen's compensation board has jurisdiction over about 50,000 workmen. The scale of compensation is said to be the most liberal in the world. Ninety-four cents of every dollar collected is applied for compensation, as against forty-four per cent in the United States.

STOLEN—50,000,000

But Bill Is Only in Marks; Taken from Pocketbook

COLUMBUS, Dec. 18—If this were 1913 this item undoubtedly would be hawked as "wuxtry—50,000,000 stolen."

Some nimble-fingered pickpocket today was in possession of this large amount of money, filched from Albert Porter, editor-in-chief of the World League Against Alcoholism encyclopedia, on a street car here last night.

The crook, in all probability, is praying for Germany's rehabilitation and stabilization—for the currency was in the form of a 50,000,000-mark bill in Porter's bill fold.

Mt. Olive Class Members Meet at Frank Clay Home

GREEN CAMP, Dec. 18—Carl Corbin was chosen president at the meeting of members of the Loyal Workers' class of the Mt. Olive Methodist Sunday school Friday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Clay. Other officers chosen are Miss Fern Martin, secretary and George Kramer, treasurer. Following the business session a social hour was enjoyed during which the annual Christmas exchange was held. Lunch was served. Guests included Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Cook and Robert Cook of LaRue; Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Uncapher, Misses Vena May and Mary Uncapher, Miss Era Dell Schwaderer, Mrs. Lucille Wannerbeck, Miss Ruth Imbody and Miss Winona Smith. Mr. and Mrs. Carl Corbin will entertain the members at the January meeting.

HOME BOMBED

Chicagoan Blames "Politics" for Attack; He and Children Escape

CHICAGO, Dec. 18—A black powder bomb today damaged the home of Lawrence F. Kling, senior member of the sanitary district board. The front porch of the Kling home was blown away and windows within a radius of several blocks were shattered by the blast.

Kling and his five children, four of whom are girls, were in bed at the time. All escaped injury.

The sanitary district trustee, who is also committeeman of this ward, blamed "politics" for the attack on his home. He said he had no personal enemies that he knew of.

A political sensation was caused recently by publication of the sanitary board's payroll, on which appeared the names of many prominent politicians.

WITNESS SLAIN

Would Have Been Star Man in Kidnaping Trial

CHICAGO, Dec. 18—The entire resources of the state's attorney's office were recruited today for a finish fight against the underworld forces responsible for the murder of Ole Scalzetti, alias Ole Scully, who was the state's star witness against the three kidnapers of little Billy Ranieri.

Scalzetti was slain late yesterday in a "soft drink" parlor on West Taylor st. In the same action, described as a free-for-all "fight," three of Scalzetti's companions were terribly beaten, one of them perhaps fatally.

The dead man was a cousin of the kidnaped youth and a business associate of his father. He had told the grand jury he would [illegible] $5,000 under death threats to Angelo Petitti, one of the accused kidnapers.

HOPE ALLEGED GANG HAS BEEN BROKEN UP

Akron Man Due for Arraignment, Toledoan Held to Grand Jury

LIMA, Dec. 18—With Frank Dianni, Akron, slated for arraignment here today on a charge of threatening Klement Naum, Lima grocer, with death unless the grocer paid him $10,000, and with Carmen Bastaldo, Toledo, held to the grand jury on a like charge, police and postal inspectors were hopeful that an alleged gang of blackhanders operating in this section had been broken up.

Bastaldo is a brother of Mrs. Rose Carbone, who was brought here from St. Paul, Minn., last Wednesday as a fugitive from justice having escaped in 1920, following her conviction on similar charges. Ross Carbone, her husband, indicted on the same charge but who escaped before trial, is in jail at Fairmount, Minn., and will be brought here after serving a sentence imposed by a Minnesota court for the shooting of a cow.

Angelo Taggio, 19, is in county jail charged with blackmail. Taggio, it is said, sent death threat letters to prominent citizens here demanding a total of $17,000.

A PROGRAM of music was presented by members of the Advance club yesterday at the annual Christmas party and exchange, held at the home of Mrs. C. M. Long, Pearl st. A good attendance of members responded to roll call with current events, after which the party, in charge of the program committee, Mrs. E. H. Morgan, Miss Clara A. Kowalke and Mrs. W. S. Harver, was given. Mrs. L. C. Wogan sang "O Little Town of Bethlehem," Ambrose, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. M. K. Mouser, after which Richard Morgan entertained with a violin solo, "Thais," Massenet, accompanied by his mother, Mrs. R. T. Morgan. A group of piano numbers, "Hark! Hark! The Lark," Schubert, "The Minstrels," De Bussey and "Hungerian Dance," MacDowell, were played by Mrs. H. K. Mouser. Closing the program, Mrs. Earl N. Hale sang a delightful group of Christmas carols and Gelbel's "Christmas Lullaby."

The club exchange, which is not personal gifts, but a gift of a toy for a basket to present to charity, was held, after which the hostesses extended an invitation to the club to a Christmas tea and social hour. At a short business meeting Mrs. C. M. Long, Mrs. L. C. Wogan and Mrs. F. C. Gegenheimer were appointed a nominating committee to elect officers for the coming year. Jan. 15 is the date for the next club meeting, the hostess to be announced later.

MRS. ELIAS FIRSTENBERGER, Mrs. Robert Reidenbaugh, Mrs. Harland Simpson, Mrs. John Crissinger, Mrs. C. E. Curtis, Mrs. L. E. Meister, Mrs. C. C. Nash, Mrs. G. H. Morrow and Mrs. C. J. Bever, as patronesses of the Delphian club, and Mrs. James Deal, a guest, were entertained at the club's Christmas party yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. J. Ackerman, 200 Bellefontaine av.

Christmas responses were given in answer to roll call, followed by a group of Christmas carols sung by a quartet, Mrs. C. F. Church, Mrs. L. J. Houghtaling, Mrs. E. W. Warwick and Mrs. C. V. Hudson. Miss Mary Louise Winters and Mrs. Houghtaling entertained with several readings and Mrs. J. B. Ferguson played two instrumental solos.

The Ackerman home was decorated with red and green, carrying out the holiday colors, with a Christmas tree as the center of the decorations. The table at which cafeteria lunch was served was centered with American Beauty roses. Poinsettias were used with the decorations in the other rooms. The annual Christmas exchange of the club was enjoyed. Jan. 7 a house picnic will be held at the home of Mrs. Grover Snyder, 183 Silver st.

Christmas Party Held by Club

"Christmas memories" were given by 20 members of the Searchlight club at the annual Christmas party and 1 o'clock luncheon of the club, yesterday at the home of Mrs. C. F. Davison, East Washington av. The home was decorated in keeping with the season, with a Christmas tree and red stockings holding the exchange gifts. Mrs. O. A. Wheaton led in the devotionals, after which Mrs. E. G. Holzhauer sang "There's A Song In the Air" and "O Little Town of Bethlehem," playing her own accompaniments. A Christmas legend was told by Mrs. J. H. Jackson. The club joined in the singing of Christmas carols. During a business session Mrs. H. C. King was appointed chairman of the memorial committee and Mrs. Davison, legislative chairman. Mrs. L. E. Starr will entertain the club Dec. 31 at her home, Lafayette st.

Le Mercure Club At Crane Home

Mrs. Alwyn Crane, assisted by Miss Mary Pennock, was hostess at the Christmas party of LeMercure club held last night at her home, Forest st. Each member told something interesting about Christmas in response to roll call, after which a program of Longfellow, Whittier, Lowell and Holmes, four New England poets, was given. The life and several representative poems of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, and the same discussion of John Greenleaf Whittier, were given in a paper presented by Miss Pennock. An appreciation of the poetry of James Russell Lowell and points of interest in his life, and the life and poetry of Oliver Wendell Holmes, together with parts of "The Autocrat of the Breakfast Table," were contributed by Mrs. Paul Knappenberger. Following the literary hour, the exchange gifts was enjoyed and a lunch served by the hostess. The club will meet Jan. 7 with Mrs. Floy Wildeman, North Greenwood st.

Christmas Program Presented By Club

The rooms of the Maye Evangeline Lawrence studio, 610 East Center st., were decorated in keeping with the Christmas season for the monthly meeting of the Schubert Music club, senior pupils of Miss Lawrence, Monday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. A short business session was held, presided over by the president, Miss Mary Heininger and the following program presented: trio, "Marceaux Brillants," Strassbug, Misses Grace Evelyn Wine, Jean Howard and Kathryn Schneider; solo, "Butterflies," Matthews, by Miss Juanita Kimmel, "Sea Gardens," piano solo written by James Francis Cooke, presented by Miss Heininger; "The Airship Fairy," Rhea Silberta, by Miss Elizabeth Mahaffey; "Puck," Grieg, by Miss Kathryn Schneider; "La Siesta," Edmund Laurens, by Miss Frances Imbody; "Silent Night," Gruber-Kohlmann, by Robert Knauss; "Waltz Caprice," Chenoweth, by Miss Lena Schuber and a duo, "Allegro from Sonatina, Op. 20, No. 2, "Kuhlau," by Miss Virginia Thomas with Miss Lawrence at the second piano.

A silver coin struck by the Austrian government this year in honor of the one hundredth anniversary of the death of the composer, Frank Schubert, interested the pupils. On one side is a profile view of the musician and on the other, the flag of all nations.

Christmas Program Given by Society

One of the most interesting meetings of the year of the Ben Hur Literary society was its annual Christmas party yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Chris. Fies, 145 John st. Roll call was answered to the question, "What Is the Christmas Spirit?" Members of the club sang "Silent Night, Holy Night," and other Christmas carols, followed by a paper, "Christmas Customs of Long Ago," prepared by Mrs. J. T. Bargar and read by Mrs. J. B. Layton. The meeting was opened with a scripture reading and the Lord's Prayer, with a salute to the flag. A poem, Christmas at the Purple Bean," by Arthur H. Folwell, was read by Mrs. J. J. Spaulding and Eugene Fields, "Tea for Christmas," was given by Mrs. T. J. Moon. Two letters were read from members of the club, Mrs. Clara Hopkins, of San Diego, Cal., and Mrs. William C. Bonham, who is wintering in Pasadena, Cal. Six members of the club were reported ill. Mrs. J. R. Sager and her committee filled baskets for distribution to charity. The Fies home was attractively decorated with flowers and lighted candles for the party. Dec. 31 the club will meet with Mrs. Frank Tschanen, South Prospect st.

King's Daughters Announce Balance in Bill Home Fund

The sum of $167 is still needed to complete the Bill home fund, according to announcement made by Miss Geraldine Hord, treasurer, at a meeting of members of the board of the City union, King's Daughters, yesterday afternoon at City library auditorium. There is now $1,433 in the treasury.

Organizations or persons wishing to contribute to the fund are asked to leave their contributions at the Marion County bank or forward it to Mrs. Walter Miley, 203 South Seffner av., or Miss Geraldine Hord, 207 Bradford st., through the mail.

The money will be used in providing a home for a family, of which both father and mother are blind.

CHEST SYSTEM NOT WITHOUT OBSTACLES

Objective Considered in Survey of Plan Proposed for Marion

gives this resume of the situation:

"All of the more solid elements in our population seem to be thoroughly sold on the chest plan. They appreciate the escape from individual financial campaigns and consider the chest plan more efficient and economical. The trouble is that we haven't been able to secure the full amount needed to meet the chest requirements. This year, as I recall the figures, we raised slightly over 80 per cent of the quota. This año, of course, handicapped the participating agencies.

Strike Obstacles

"Our difficulty is to some extent peculiar to our town. Like other cities we have some people who object to everything. Here they are aggressive and go out and make a lot of trouble. But the main obstacles to the financing of the chest, in my opinion, are the inclusion in the list of beneficiaries of two organizations. These have given the objectors two arguments that have been hard to answer."

In another Ohio city two organizations are said to be very unpopular, these organizations need more money and because the budget board feels the public will not stand for an increase in their budgets, the two agencies contemplate getting out of the chest and launching their own individual campaigns.

Chief Disadvantages

Among the disadvantages of the community chest the following have been selected as the most striking:

After a certain point is reached new agencies admitted to the chest do not bring a following with them. They simply add one more burden to regular contributors.

The particular interest which an individual has in one agency may be broken down.

After a few years the city reaches the end of its giving. The rest of the money becomes a hard task and considerable pressure is likely to be placed on workers in industry. This pressure is dangerous.

Almost inevitably means a disproportionate emphasis in campaign publicity upon the relief agencies as contrasted with the constructive agencies like the Christian associations, settlements, boy scouts, etc., because the appeal for the relief of suffering is the most universal appeal.

Advantages of the community chest as seen in other cities by authorities and students of the chest will be discussed in a future article in The Star.

SMARTLY STYLED

A sheer tweed in tiny self-checked pattern in beige and tan coloring, so appropriate for classroom or out-of-doors for the little sub-deb. The bow tie of faille silk crepe matches tan suede belt. It copies the chic adult mode with its slightly bloused bodice and rippling circular skirt with belt showing new higher waistline. Navy blue wool crepe, French blue wool jersey, navy blue velveteen, printed velveteen and sealing-wax red homespun are smart suggestions. Style No. 2573 is designed in sizes 8, 10, 12, 14 and 16 years, and takes 2 yards of 36-inch material with ¼ yard of 36-inch contrasting for the 8-year miss. Pattern price 15 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred). Our patterns are made by the leading Fashion Designers of New York City and are guaranteed to fit perfectly. In ordering pattern why not enclose 10 cents additional for a copy of our new Fashion Magazine. It shows the most attractive Winter styles. Also lovely suggestions for useful Xmas gifts, that will be truly appreciated, that you'll find very inexpensive to make.

Daphne

An Unusual Romance of Love and Sacrifice

BY RAHEL LIVINGSTON

CHAPTER 43

ER slipped by, and De- and on a warm January Greely came back to the rst it seemed queer to see t the big mahogany desk, , paneled office, and his in the corner.

ntly it seemed natural— d never been away—and r the trouble autumn days arly spelled ruin for Ralph Kerritt, Stocks and Bonds, forgotten. No one erer an Winters now. Old Mr. ital, and old Mr. Greely's eared the situation.

re rumors of course; the retty generally known on "Young Winters skipped d, eh?. You never know he way, wasn't his father some scandal? Seems to involved in something way old racing days at Emery- itted suicide, didn't he?" evitt didn't suffer because of the street. Rather, he it. Men who had cared for him before, thought im now. It was generally at McKevitt had done the . He had nothing to say one-time friend, and be had evidently decided not to prosecute.

Quixotic, perhaps, but you can afford to be Quixotic when you have the McKevitt estate and Greely, Sanderson and McMurtrie behind you. It proved the solid foundation upon which Ralph Iverson McKevitt, Stocks and Bonds, was built. A broker that can take a loss of a cool hundred thousand (the loss grew in the telling) is a good man with whom to do business. The business grew.

As the days passed, and the weeks grew into months, Ralph McKevitt became his old, carefree self again. That is, he became as carefree as he could under the sharp eyes and iron hand of old man Greely. His thin cheeks filled out, he walked with the old, arrogant assurance. Ruddy, well dressed, affable, he radiated success. "H'are you, Sanderson? Yo, there, Mr. McMurtrie. . . . Well, Daphne, more beautiful than ever!"

But something was missing. "I don't know, I guess it's because Greely has his nose in everything," he told Crystal. "I can't call my soul my own any more. Talk about your pound of flesh," he certainly takes it!"

Sometimes he sought out Daphne and carried her away for brief, breath-taking runs into the country in his car. She always wanted to refuse, but she never did. No matter how many times she told herself she wouldn't go again, that there wasn't any sense in it, and she only broke her heart all over again with each aching leave-taking, when the moment of refusal came she weakened. The cool excuses which she had rehearsed so carefully were never made. With a tell-tale blush, and a tremulous, "I'd love to go, Ralph!" she flew for her hat, and feverishly powdered her nose.

"I wouldn't go if he were really engaged," she told herself. "But he certainly hasn't said anything about it, and didn't Mr. Greely himself say I was a fool to believe my stepmother? She probably just wrote that for spite!"

He never spoke of Crystal any more, and to her shy questions about the orchard lands and her father he had only the vaguest answers. "I don't know. I'm sure, Daphne . . . I wouldn't worry . . . Yes, he's borrowed a lot on it, but he may know what he's doing, he was always a pretty shrewd business man."

Mrs. Haines wrote regularly now, acknowledging the money Daphne sent on the second of every month. "Your father is awful hard up. I do my best, but I'm far from a well woman," she wrote in purple ink, in her angular, cramped hand. But then, you never could believe a word that Adeline Haines said! Daphne reassured herself with that, but there was a new note of sincerity in the mauve-tinted letters.

The velvet dress she had planned to buy in the January sales went the way of the red fox fur she had hoped for in November; they were never bought. The money was turned into postoffice money-orders, to go toward interest, and taxes, and labor in the orchards.

"For Pete's sake, why don't you move out of that mausoleum where you're living?" Ralph demanded one night when he was bidding her goodbye on the sagging Hinckle stairs.

"He'd come to see me much oftener, if there were any place for him to come!" she thought intuitively, her heart quickened. If she had a place . . . even a cheap little apartment . . . And then it sank. "I can't afford to move," she said frankly.

"What?"

"I can't."

He looked at her suspiciously. "Aw come now, Daphne—no poor mouth. I know you're getting a $150 a month from Greely!"

"I have to send money home!" It was on the tip of her tongue to tell him, Ralph whom she loved, and who knew all about the hard times at home, and the orchard. But that queer, appraising look of his silenced her. "I have a lot of expenses," she said instead, and then defiantly, "Besides, I don't want to. I like the Hinckles. It's—it's quite nice, inside."

"Yes, it looks nice," he said disgustedly. "Smells nice, too. Like a Chinese laundry and a Greek hash house rolled into one. And as for that old slattern that's always peeking out the front window at us—the dressmaker—well, I won't tell you what she looks like. However, if you like it it's all right with me. I don't have to live here. I suppose Greely told you to salt down your money. He would!"

They parted coldly.

"I don't blame him," she thought when the squeaky front door closed behind her. She looked around the long dark hall with the worn carpet, the steep narrow stairs, the flickering gaslight in the fluted red globe. . . . "Who would want to come here? Even Flora is going to move. . . ."

And a little stab of pain went through her, thinking what it would be like without Flora.

"Oh, Flora, I was just thinking of you!" she cried, as Flora, who must have been right behind her, opened the front door.

"You couldn't have been thinking anything very pleasant!" Flora grinned, with a quick look at Daphne's downcast face. "Even in the roseate glow of yonder ruby light you look . . . oh, what am I talking about? Come on upstairs with me, I have news. No, not about you. About me. It'll surprise you!"

Her long arm was around Daphne's waist. Her breath smelled of gin. "Flora, you'll break your lovely flowers if you squeeze me that way—see, you're ruining them!"

Flora regarded the crushed orchids she had worn on her shoulder with a quizzical air. "Sure, but what of it? There'll be more where that bunch came from. That's the news. I'm going to get married. Porter Webb, of Webb and Wunzer, the Store that Sells or Less. You wouldn't believe it, but he craves to make an honest woman of me. He wants to get married at once if not sooner. He's thrilled to death, he thinks I must have brains because I work on a paper. He says it's nice to meet a lady that ain't a buyer—yes, he says 'ain't'—but what do I care? He's going to have a grand time introducing me to all his friends, the literary Miss McCardle, can you beat it?"

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

TODAY was Tuesday, and it wasn't Sunday so it wasn't such a nice day. There wasn't any sun, and the clouds were so low it looked like a fella could jump up and touch them, and when I came out of the barn with Jubilee it had begun snowing great big flakes almost as big as the two-bits I have not got any more, and they were coming down so close together that I could hardly see the house, and a fellow's footsteps didn't make any more noise than as if he was walking on feathers.

And there was a cold wind. It wasn't blowing but it was just sort of hanging around like it didn't know what to do or where to go, and I had my milk pail in one hand and Jubilee was jumping up to reach the other hand which I was holding out to balance myself, and all at once I saw something in front of me all white with falling snow just like a ghost, and just then a wad of snow as big as my head hit me in the face and blotted out my eyes and nose and mouth, and when I got my eyes open again, I heard someone laugh out by the front gate and I went tearing that way to head them off, and it was Younias and Feeble and Maggie just coming through the gate and I hit them so hard we all went down in a heap. But I was lucky and held up the hand that was holding the milk pail and didn't spill any; so then I asked them if they would just as soon take the milk in the kitchen for me, and they took it away through the falling snow, and when the kitchen door opened the light in the kitchen showed them going through with the pail, and I squatted down just inside the gate and hung onto Jubilee.

Pretty soon there come the Lost Bag of Tripe with his grin like a slice cut out of a pumpkin, and so busy watching the back door that he didn't see me till I had him by the ankle, and then I stood up still hanging onto his ankle and looked him in the eye. I gave him the kind of a cold deadly look that a pirat gives his victims so that he could see that it would be useless to ast for mercy, and then he must have brung up one of his fists under my chin for I felt my head hop up off the spine of my back about four inches, and then snap back again, and there was more stars than snowflakes, but I still had hold of his ankle, and I drug him back to the barn and Jubilee and I put the milkers and the hay fellas over in the other barn, and then we clung all together and I told them I would let go of Tripe if they would promise to take him and keep him and not let him come back, and they said they would, and I let go of Tripe and he shook his head and it didn't fall off, and he stood up and I was grinning at him, and he hung a joke on my nose that almost busted it and slung out. That was a joke on him.

The fact that a fool and his money are soon parted is the only thing that enables some people to make both ends meet.

Right Way To Carve and Apportion Christmas Bird

THE first requisite of a good carver is a knowledge of the anatomy of the fowl or joint that he is to dissect. The second is sharp and appropriate knives for the job, and a platter large enough to avoid accidents. The art of carving a turkey besides laying off the joints correctly is to get as many slices from the breast as possible.

Every good carver knows the presence and location of the wishbone, and if this is removed before the bird is cooked it saves a lot of trouble. If this is deftly done by slipping a sharp knife under each prong cutting upward to the point then bending it back and cutting it loose, none of the meat will be sacrificed. If the turkey has been well trussed, stuffed, roasted on its breast, then plumped before browning with a dredging of flour, the breast will be compact and slice nicely.

The carver places the prongs of the fork across the top of the breast bone. This gives control of the bird. The fork should remain there during the carving, a small serving fork being used to clear the platter. First sever the leg at the first joint. Then cut downward and take out the second joint. Next remove the wing at the shoulder, turn the bird and do the same to the other side. Now the entire bird is ready for slicing. With a sharp knife slice from the breast bone downwards, as many slices as possible from the breast. Next slice as many slices of dark meat as possible from where the second joint was removed. Turn the bird over and repeat the operation on the other side. The head of the bird must always be at the carver's left-hand side.

Next serve a little light and dark meat on each plate, slit open the apron and portion out the dressing. If there is a preference for joints they may be judiciously distributed. If the sinews have been carefully removed from the legs the carver often slices the meat from them and serves it with the rest.

If the breast has a specially savory dressing different from that which is used to fill the body of the bird a little may be served with each. When the carving is done in the kitchen all the joints are stripped, then the bone may be used in soup and the meat will go much further.

Removing the neck for a French breast makes a little more slicing possible. After the meal is over the slice meat may be put away carefully in a covered bowl, the dressing sliced to warm up in the gravy. The rack is then stripped, the meat chopped and the bones thrown into the soup kettle. The fine may be chopped and served for turkey hash for breakfast. This prevents the meat from standing and drying onto the bones as it does very quickly. The second day service, if the meat is heated in the gravy, is almost equal to the first serving. By careful carving there is very little waste which means a lot if the birds are bought at fancy prices, which is almost always the case at holiday time.

Roasting chickens and large ducks are carved in practically the same way as the turkey, but of course there is less on them. Sometimes the capon chicken is nearly as meaty as a turkey if it is a large one. In selecting the turkey see that you get a short thick and deep breasted bird. If there is more meat on them than on the tall, long-bodied birds.

In garnishing the turkey use crisp sprays of parsley and small pickle of cranberry or apple jelly. Too elaborate garnishing makes it difficult for the carver. Small stuffed tomatoes or peppers make a pretty garnish, or halved oranges, cinnamon pears, or fried pineapple may be used.

Love's Awakening

The Heart Story of a Woman's Lasting Affection

BY AUBLE HARRISON

Scheme To Return the $20,000

THE silence which followed Samuel Brixton's final appeal to Lillian lasted no longer than a minute. But it seemed a full hour in duration while I watched the expression of the man's face change from truculence and thwarted scheming to a resigned acceptance of her dictum.

"All right," he said at last, "I'll tell Helena everything's O. K. I'll do more than that. When Marion is of age, I'll make it right with her. She'll probably have some reason, instead of trying to pick flaws in something which is perfectly correct."

He shot a venomous side glance at me, and I knew that he cheerfully could have strangled me. But I looked at him with smiling nonchalance.

"We can safely leave that to her decision," I said. "For the present, let us forget that this conversation has been held."

He started perceptibly.

"Are you willing to do that?" he asked eagerly. "You won't make Helena feel bad by taking Marion away from that school or anything like that?"

"Of course not," Lillian exclaimed indignantly, and I saw that I must walk warily where her sympathies with Helena Brixton were concerned. But I had a vivid ironic memory of her wish to change Marion's school which she had expressed to me but a few minutes before. Not for the first time I realized that my friend will sacrifice anything on earth to her fear of being unjust.

I thought I saw part, at least, of the scheme which I suspected Samuel Brixton and his half-brother of concocting against Lillian. They meant to have Marion on such terms of intimacy with the Brixton family that anything they suggested to her later on would have the same weight as if it came from her mother's closest friends. But there was nothing I could do save watch and wait. Later I meant to devise some plan for pitting Marion on her guard against the two men.

That could wait, however. I did not wish to upset the child, and I was sure that neither Samuel Brixton nor his half-brother—especially his half-brother—would do anything precipitate. There was a waiting game. Sam Brixton might be rash and impetuous, but Charles Owen, far more dangerous, was a red Indian in his infinite patience.

Mr. Brixton turned to me, his truculence vanquished by Lillian's prompt assent to his plea for keeping Marion in the school.

"Just forget that spiel of mine," he said with a roughly apologetic air.

"I was sore, I admit, for a minute or two, and I let my temper get the better of me, but I have no hard feelings, I hope you haven't."

His was the confident air of the man who is accustomed to "squaring things" by the sheer force of his bluff good nature. It suited me, however, to let him think that I accepted his apology. With Marion and Carolyn prospective roommates at school with the intimacy which that relationship implied, it was vitally necessary that I be on apparently friendly terms with the Brixton family. Otherwise I could not keep up the watch over Marion's contact with them.

"I have no personal feeling in this matter whatever," I told him. "Suppose we turn the leaf down——"

"And paste it shut," Samuel Brixton rounded with a huge laugh. "I'm agreed. And now, I've got to look up the family. We have several places to stop before we go down to Carolyn's school."

Splendid Recipe To Stop A Cough That "Hangs On"

The best cough remedy that money could buy, can easily be made at home. It saves money and gives you the most reliable, quick-acting medicine you ever used. The way it takes hold of stubborn coughs and chest colds, giving immediate relief, is astonishing.

Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and fill up with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. It's no trouble at all to mix, and when you once use it you will never be without it. Keeps perfectly and tastes good—children really like it.

It is surprising how quickly this home-made remedy loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and soothes and heals the inflamed membranes. At the same time, it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes, and helps the system throw off the whole trouble. Even those severe coughs which usually follow the "flu" are promptly ended.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a reduced, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Exams Taking Up Time of Students In Home Stretch

Marion Star Bureau
Ohio State University

Columbus, Dec. 18—The fall school term was tearing its way down the home stretch at Ohio State university prior to the opening of the final examination period in the 11 colleges on the campus this week.

The nearness of the end of the term gave a silent warning of "be prepared" to the student body and as a result "dates" are becoming fewer and an intensive study started which has been unrivaled since school began in September.

The University library which ordinarly is spotted here and there with an ambitious student, has reported an increased attendance as the fatal days approach. Social activity, in general for the time being has given way to text books.

Homeward Bound

The flock of 10,000 embryonic doctors, lawyers, business men and women, agriculturists, economists, journalists, teachers, engineers and scientists will be released from their fold at the university, Dec. 22 and the roads will be thickly dotted immediately after with the homeward bound students.

Simultaneously, a huge university will be lifeless silently awaiting the gong which will call together the vacationists from all parts of the state and nation for the winter term, Jan. 3.

Ohio State students will go through the ordeal of final examinations, Dec. 19 to 21 which will determine whether many will be permitted to return at the opening of the winter term. Approximately 100 students will receive degrees at the convocation preceding the vacation period.

Martel Student To Aid in Staging O. S. U. Dance

COLUMBUS, Dec. 18—Melvin O. Kennedy, of Martel, has been appointed to aid in the staging of the annual sophomore dance, which will be given at Ohio State university, Jan. 25, according to an announcement made at the university recently.

Kennedy was appointed a member of the music committee by G. Dan Lose, of Massillon, president of the class. The dance will replace the Grid Hop usually held by the second year class.

The Martel youth is a sophomore and is enrolled in the College of Agriculture. He is affiliated with Tau Gamma Phi, agriculture fraternity.

Green Camp Home Builders Class Holds Business Session

GREEN CAMP, Dec. 18—The Home Builders group of the Baptist church met with Mr. and Mrs. Otto Bosse Thursday night. The teacher, Mrs. Claire Porter had charge of the business session when plans were made to hold a bake sale Dec. 22 at Uhler-Phillips basement, Marion. New officers elected for year were Nora Johnson, president; Leota Court, vice president and Grace Disterdick, secretary and treasurer. Mrs. Claire Porter was reelected teacher. In a season of contests Nina Weston, Leota Court and Frank Hopkins won honors. The class will be entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. O. Johnson for the January meeting. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Haberman, Ava May and John Habermann were guests.

It's the Mate to Reo Flying Cloud the Master!

If you're the man who didn't quite want to pay Flying Cloud prices last year—step forward one pace and smile . . . We've added the Mate to Flying Cloud the Master—a size smaller in inches and price—but not in performance. You know what you're after—balanced craftsmanship. A car that will do everything, as well as it ought to be done—a car for the experienced motorist who wants not only miles per hour and a good paint job, but effortless power and solid comfort. Speed—more than you'll ever need—here it is. Absolute dependability—dirt roads or concrete. No hitting the top on jounces when you hit the pace on high. A wheel that steers with a finger. Quick pick-up—to get away before the mob. Internal hydraulic four-wheel brakes that grip instantly—without grabbing or slipping. A constitution that makes you look forward to hills. And your wife wants? . . . More comfort inside—more room. A rear seat wider at the bottom to prevent crowding, wider still at shoulder height—no cramping on long runs. A front seat wider, too—so a third passenger won't turn you into a crabby driver. Since squeaks set her wild, she wants body-work welded instead of bolted or riveted . . . And, of course, she wants beauty—clean line that spells speed from nose to spare. No announcement could sell either of you a car, no matter what it said. This one is designed to make you go and look—and take a trial spin. Flying Cloud the Master has already proved itself. If the Mate is half the car we think it is, it will do its own selling. REO MOTOR CAR CO. • LANSING, MICHIGAN

MARION BOY TAKING COURSE IN AVIATION

John C. Schroeter Enters Second Stage of Training at Brooks Field

John C. Schroeter, son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Schroeter, 417 East Center st., recently started on the second stage of his year course at the Brooks flying field, San Anonio, Tex., it was learned today.

The work which Schroeter is taking at the Texas airport is a part of his training in aeronautical engineering at the Boston Institute of Technology.

After two years at Cornell university Schroeter attended the Boston technical college for a year. In July he started his training at Brooks field and will return to Boston after his year in San Antonio has been completed.

Before starting his work at Brooks field, which is under the direct supervision of of the United States government, Schroeter had to enlist as a flying cadet. He is now ranked as a first lieutenant although his parents state that he still prefers to be addressed as a flying cadet.

The first four months of his course in San Antonio Schroeter worked on the first stage of his training. In which he was instructed in the operation of the smaller and lighter airplanes. In the second stage, in which he is now engaged, he is working with the larger and heavier airplanes.

Each stage in the course is four months long and for his third stage Schroeter will receive instruction in the more intricate phases of flying at Kelly field, San Antonio. At present he also aids in the drilling of the flying cadets just coming into the training school.

When Schroeter completes his training at San Antonio he will return to the Boston Institute of Technology to finish his course in aeronautical engineering. He will then be an officer in the reserve flying corps and open to call by the United States government at all times.

Service of Bureau Offered Public; Applications for Jobs Now on File

Asking that local residents use the Red Cross as an employment bureau, Miss Margaret L. Dowd, secretary of the Marion County Red Cross chapter, stated today that a number of names of persons in need of work are listed at the offices of the local organization.

Extra help for small jobs about the house such as housework, cleaning, washing, practical nursing or repairing can be obtained through the aid of the Red Cross, Miss Dowd said.

Giving employment to men or women out of work may save some family's self respect, she said.

When Children Get Feverish

The first and best thing to do when children get feverish, irritable, have coated tongue and bad breath is to start thorough bowel action.

Do this with Triena, the new scientific corrective, containing the juice of pure tree-ripened prunes. Triena is made especially for children and contains nothing injurious or harmful to them.

Not only does Triena promote thorough, pleasant bowel action but it sweetens the stomach and tends to cause healthier liver action as well.

Keep Triena in your home and give it to your children instead of nauseating castor oil, dangerous calomel or old-fashioned physics.

Your druggist sells and recommends Triena with a money back guarantee. Large 4-ounce bottle costs only 50c.

College Prank of Years Ago Recalled as Marion Man Discovers Pershing Souvenir

A TATTERED piece of blue and yellow wool cloth was unearthed recently by James E. Messenger, county treasurer, while looking through an old trunk. The cloth was faded and moth eaten but it brought back memories that had lain dormant for more than 33 years.

There was nothing significant in the piece of cloth itself. But the fact that it was one time part of a pair of army breeches owned by one of America's outstanding citizens General John J. Pershing, makes the bit of cloth worth far more than its actual value.

Memory Refreshed

When Mr. Messenger found the bit of cloth his mind flashed back to his student days in the University of Nebraska 33 years ago. General Pershing was then a first lieutenant in the 10th cavalry, and was commandant of the cadet corps of the university.

It was in May 1895 that the cadet cavalry company of which Mr. Messenger was a member won the prize in the annual competitive drill staged by students of the university. To commemorate the winning of the prize an enterprising member of the company conceived the idea of giving each member a badge made from a pair of Pershing's trousers.

The idea, according to Mr. Messenger, was no sooner conceived than it was put in execution. The student, entering Pershing's quarters in his absence, was searching diligently for a pair of used trousers, thinking that these would be missed less, when the officer suddenly returned.

Pershing Generous

Pershing, thinking that the student was simply ransacking his quarters, severely reprimanded him and then threatened to have him expelled from school. But after the student explained the purpose of his visit Pershing, evidentally realizing the humor of the situation, insisted that the student take a new pair of trousers.

It was a piece of these trousers that Mr. Messenger found in his trunk.

Mr. Messenger also recalled today that Brig. Gen. James E. Fechet, now commanding officer of the United States aviation forces, was a student in the University of Nebraska in 1895.

MARION MAN FILES MT. GILEAD REPORT

Browne Informs Council Sewage Plant Is of Adequate Size

EXPENSE CUT LIKELY

Possibility of Costly Extension Program Believed To Be Eliminated

MT GILEAD, Dec 18—The fact that the statement was made by F G Browne, sewage disposal expert from Marion, that the capacity of the local sewage disposal plant is adequate dispelled the possibility of a several thousand dollar extension program in the mind of the local council last night Mr. Browne voiced the opinion after making an examination of the plant last week

Although this possibly eliminates, to a certain extent, expense expected by the council, the cost of the much needed improvements on the beds will be of considerable proportions, Mr Browne, having made but a surface examination of the conditions existing here refused to offer an estimate of the probable cost of the work needed He did state, however, that the condition the beds were in would necessitate not only additional mechanical equipment but also a man to supervise operations at least two or three hours a day, to secure the efficiency needed if the beds are to care for the sewers here

Repairs Needed

The operator of the plant, at present, has been spending some time with the beds but can accomplish but little, as the beds are sadly in need of new sand, filters, etc The smaller plant, a separate system caring for the west end of the town, is operating satisfactorily Mr Browne stated, and with a few minor improvements will be all that could be asked However, the main plant will need a few improvements and repairs

Clint Graham, a resident of East High st., asked council for authority to have a barn now used for a garage situated on an alley bordering his home, set back off the premises of the alley This matter was left with the street committee with power to act

Notice to Watchman

The council moved to ask Night Watchman J R Wilson to report at every meeting, and to be completely informed as to the duties of his office. It was understood by this action that he is to continue his services here

M. L Phillips, proprietor of a furniture store in the Levering Hall block asked council for an expression of its attitude in regard to basketball games in the hall, stating that the noise greatly conflicted with the demonstration of radios, graphaphones, etc. No action was taken.

UNDER ARREST

Marysville Man Faces Probable Return to Reformatory

MARYSVILLE, Dec 18—Melvin Spain, out of the Mansfield reformatory on parole, will probably be returned to that institution as the result of being one of the three persons caught Sunday night, about five miles north of here, when it was suspected that the trio were going to attempt a chicken theft They were caught with a chicken crate on their car near the Brooker farm from which chickens had been stolen before. When caught, they admitted planning the theft, authorities state Even though they admitted their plans it is thought nothing can be done to the other two

A siphon for draining gasoline from automobiles, a quantity of gas and other things thought to have been stolen were also found in the car

FILES ACTION FOR ASSESSMENTS

Suit Seeks To Collect $406.97 for Failure To Pay on Property

BUCYRUS, Dec 18—J O Crider, and Ruth B Crider, Monday filed action in the common pleas court here against Margery B Worden, et al, seeking to collect $406 97 claimed by the plaintiffs as damages due to the failure of the defendants to pay assessments on property in Jefferson township, purchased from the defendants. The petition alleges that the land was purchased from the defendants free of all encumbrances, and that since purchasing the land the plaintiffs were forced to pay assessments totaling the amount asked in the suit.

The defendants in the action are Margery, L D, Minnie S, and B Frank, Worden, James C, Inez, Joseph W., and Dora Robertson, Grace and Phillip Blasing, Clark E and Emer Eccleston

Two other actions setting forth similar reasons for suit were brought by Rose Gledhill and Myrtle Gledhill against L M and Maria Schreck and M B and Sena B Hershner, seeking to collect $307 76 and by Thomas and Rachel Landrum against The Home Savings & Loan company of Galion, for $286 82

The actions in all three cases were filed by Attorney C. U. Ahl, of this city.

"LOST 38 POUNDS BEFORE I TRIED FAMOUS KONJOLA"
"My Friends Thought I Had Only Short Time To Live," Says Lady Praising New Medicine.

MRS. JEROME LEF

From everywhere Konjola is known there pour in glowing endorsements from men and women to whom this master medicine has proved their first and only relief No wonder, when this super remedy succeeds as it does in cases that have yielded to no other treatment. Consider the case of Mr Jerome Lee, 350 East Erie street, Painesville, Ohio

"I was so rundown after an attack of flu that I lost 38 pounds, and my friends have told me that they did not expect me to live. My stomach pained so after eating that I walked the floor in agony I had terrible bilious attacks and dizzy spells, and my kidneys forced me to get up often at night My weight fell from 160 to 112 pounds. Friends who realized the danger urged me to try Konjola I was dubious for not a thing had given me the slightest relief But Konjola proved to be the glorious exception In three weeks I regained nine and one half pounds My bowels, stomach liver and kidneys are in perfect condition, and I am eating everything I shall never recover from the astonishment I experienced when Konjola restored my health so quickly and so thoroughly."

Konjola is different than any other known remedy in this section It contains twenty-two juices extracted from certain roots and herbs found growing in the Highlands of Europe where the inhabitants are noted for their health and vitality. Konjola is different than any other known remedy in this section It contains twenty-two juices extracted from natural plants which invigorate the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels to a more healthy action. The effect of this Konjola on the entire system brings amazing relief in cases of suffering that has been going on for years. At the same time, many weak and rundown systems have been restored to a new state of health through this compound. Such a vast number of men and women in this city have told of their experience with this new medical product, until now, Konjola is the most highly talked of medicine that is known in this section.

Konjola is sold in Marion at Hane & Hane Pharmacy and by leading druggists throughout this section. Adv.

Ohio Must Guard Against Flu
Local People Urged to Prevent Epidemic Spreading as it did in 1918, when Half a Million Lives were Lost in this Country Alone
Don't Take Chances With Cold!

While there is no cause for alarm at this time, health authorities urge extra precaution—especially now, when grippy colds, pneumonia and influenza are so prevalent

Colds Lead to "Flu"

Warning is given particularly against neglecting colds, which lower one's physical resistance and thus make the body easy prey for influenza grip and pneumonia Even a little cold, authorities say, is dangerous unless checked at once

The only safe plan is to check every cold at the start by a vigorous application of Vicks VapoRub rubbed on throat and chest at bedtime

Acts 2 Ways at Once

For hours after Vicks is applied, its ingredients time-tested remedies, such as camphor, menthol, eucalyptus, thyme, and turpentine are released as vapors by the body heat, and inhaled direct to the infected air-passages loosening the phlegm and easing the difficult breathing At the same time, Vicks acts through the skin like a poultice, "drawing out" tightness and pain

Avoids "Dosing" Children

Mothers especially appreciate Vicks for children, as it can be used freely and often, without disturbing the digestion—you "just rub it on" Over 21 million jars are used yearly —Adv.

KENTON CALLS OFF GAME WITH SAINTS

Flu Leads to Cancellation of Fray Here Friday Night

KENTON, Dec. 18—Because of illness among the players, the parochial high school basketball management, Monday cancelled its game scheduled for Friday night against the St. Mary's high of Marion.

Two crack players are now confined to their beds with slight attacks of influenza while a third man is unable to attend school.

Charles Friedel and LeRoy Bernard, two-year letter men of the Catholic squad and mainstays of the club this season, were taken ill Sunday and were forced to their beds late Monday. Under orders from the attending physicians, they will be unable to play perhaps for a week or more.

"With these two men out of the line-up it would be practically useless to send the team into a game," Coach Dick Rubins, former Kenton high star, said last night. "Then there is one more of the regular string indisposed now and would not likely be able to play this week."

There is a possibility that the Marion game will be booked for a later date.

The St. Anthony club is not alone among the basketball teams effected by the present epidemic of colds and illness in Kenton. Two star players on the world famous Indian team are confined by illness. They are Raymond West and Anthony Wapp.

Robert Barnes, coach of the Kenton high school team, was reported ill on Monday and was unable to attend classes. His team is slated to meet Ada high school at the armory here Thursday night.

SHARKEY BACKS OUT ON PROPOSED FIGHT AT MIAMI IN MARCH

Paulino To Be Given Chance at Young Stribling by Rickard

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, Dec. 18—It now seems that everybody thought the proposed Sharkey-Stribling fight at Miami Beach was a great idea, except Jack Sharkey. Rickard was for it; the mugs were for it; Stribling, I assume, was for it. Sharkey apparently wasn't and isn't, which is unfortunate but hardly disastrous.

There will be a big heavyweight fight at Miami on or about March 1, with Stribling as one of the principals. Rickard wasn't at all tentative about this point today in discussing Sharkey's reluctance to play with Stribling at the scene selected. While he was about it, Mr. Rickard also discussed Sharkey and he wasn't at all tentative about that subject, either.

Looks For Soft Spots

Among other statements, he declared that Sharkey was "looking for soft spots" and that he had never been the same fighter since the night Dempsey flailed him flat.

It may be that Rickard and Sharkey will [illegible] and become bosom friends again as the need occurs. But it won't happen at Miami Beach, Fla. After what he said of it the man today, Rickard couldn't drop Sharkey in this sport if the latter begged for it on bended boloneys.

He has gone out of his way to declare Sharkey a chump fighter who left him highly unimpressed by his recent performance against Arthur De Kuh. By Rickard's own admission, Sharkey no longer belongs. Having talked the latter out of it, he can't be talked back.

May Be All Wet

There are many who will concede that Rickard, speaking in the higher octaves, is all wet. Personally, I think he has been saturated from the moment he announced a fight without observing the formality of arranging for at least two men to fight it.

Sharkey also is slightly dumb in declaring that no man could hope to get a break with Stribling in Florida. These are enlightened days and the man doesn't live who won't figure to have his shots called impartially for him regardless of who he fights or where he fights him. However, I refuse to get perturbed about the pugilistic tendency toward total immersion. This is congenial and, therefore, highly unimportant.

Paulino Now Favored

Paulino now is the preferred candidate for the Stribling shot. In fact, it is said that the Miami Beach people wanted the Basque from the first because of their proximity to Cuba and the Spanish vote. Paulino is now in South America for no reason at all and Rickard hasn't the slightest idea whether the gentleman is amenable to reason. Just the same, he says is "in" and will stay in until such time it at all, that he declares himself out.

In fact, there is only one thing certain about the entire proposition, to-wit, that Miami Beach will get a big fight featuring Stribling, this winter. That much virtually is ordained.

"Bunk" — Fesler Says of All-American Selections

Marion Star Bureau
Ohio State University

COLUMBUS, Dec. 18 — "Bunk."

That's the opinion of Wesley Fesler, Ohio State grid star, in regard to Grantland Rice's selection of an All-American football team which included Fesler at one of the end positions.

"The All-American idea for football teams is the bunk," said Fesler when interviewed at Ohio State university following his selection.

"This whole affair of being selected as the outstanding end in intercollegiate football seems like a dream. I can scarcely believe it."

Fesler who hails from Youngstown, is a shy and modest youth, ill at ease when talking about himself but strong in his praise for other members of the Buckeye team and Coach J. W. Wilce.

"Wes" began his career at Ohio State as a center and played that position irregularly last year with the freshmen team. This year with Fred Barratt, Lansing, Mich., athlete, a sure possibility for the "snapper" berth, Fesler changed himself into an end and in the brief period between the start of practice and the close of the season, according to sports writers, he developed into the greatest end in the country. Grantland Rice and other prominent sport critics first noticed the brilliant playing of Fesler at the Princeton game which was played in the Ohio Stadium, Nov. 3.

Fesler is the third of a family of athletes to represent Ohio State. His brother, Ray, captained the Ohio State baseball team in 1923 and Don was a member of the tennis team in 1924.

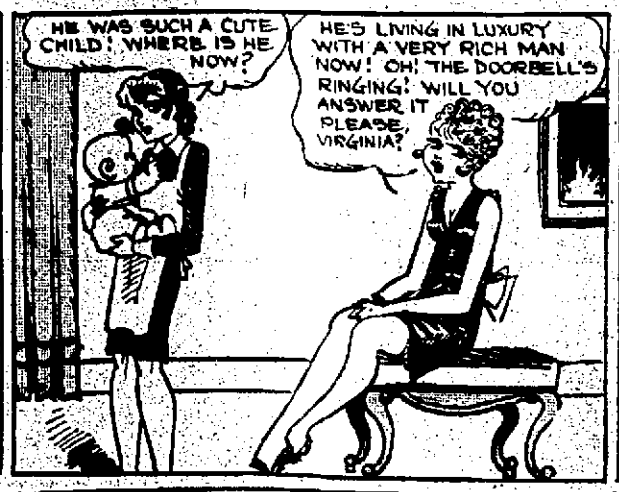
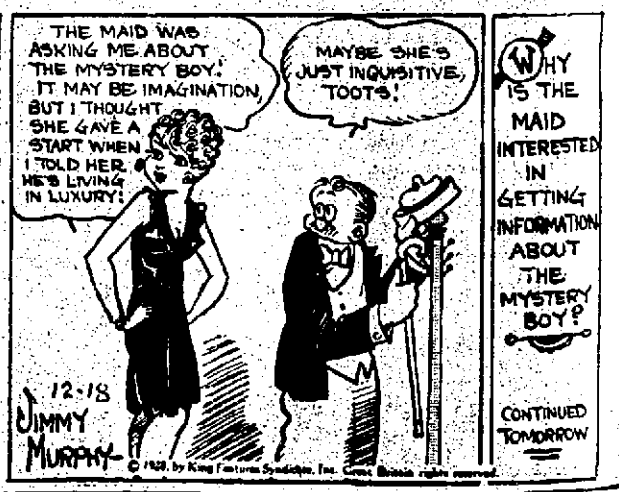
I FREQUENTLY PASSED THIS HOUSE LAST YEAR, AND I USED TO SEE A LITTLE BOY ABOUT SIX YEARS OLD PLAYING ON THE LAWN! WAS HE YOUR SON?
OH, NO! THAT WAS UNCLE'S LITTLE MYSTERY BOY! HE DOESN'T LIVE WITH US ANY MORE!



HE WAS SUCH A CUTE CHILD! WHERE IS HE NOW?
HE'S LIVING IN LUXURY WITH A VERY RICH MAN NOW! OH! THE DOORBELL'S RINGING! WILL YOU ANSWER IT PLEASE, VIRGINIA?



THE MAID WAS ASKING ME ABOUT THE MYSTERY BOY! IT MAY BE IMAGINATION, BUT I THOUGHT SHE GAVE A START WHEN I TOLD HER HE'S LIVING IN LUXURY!
MAYBE SHE'S JUST INQUISITIVE, TOOTS!
WHY IS THE MAID INTERESTED IN GETTING INFORMATION ABOUT THE MYSTERY BOY?

TODAY'S REVIEW OF YESTERDAY'S GRAIN

CHICAGO, Dec. 18—Typical of the usual market of the period, grain trading in the first session of the pre-holiday week was without feature. Activity was confined to transactions of a professional nature and prices finished without material change.

Wheat opened steady, met with northwest selling pressure and eased off. Later early pit sellers covered on the failure of the market to break and most of the loss was made up. Commission houses bought small amounts on the early dip.

Locals and commission houses bought corn on the continued wet weather, but when prices reached the cost of the privileges there was selling and realizing. A reaction followed near the close, though a fraction of the grain was held.

Winnipeg Wheat Off

Wheat prices closed unchanged to 1-8c lower. Corn finished with net advances of 1-8@1-4c; oats were unchanged to 1-4c lower, and rye was 1-4@1-2c down. Winnipeg wheat futures were 1-4c lower at the end of the session.

News of wheat continued devoid of incentive and the narrowing interest in the market itself precluded any activity with a lack of anything to base it on. Liverpool was easier, closing 5-8@3-4d lower, but this was about due.

Cables from England said that while weekly statistics were construed as bullish, the lack of interest in their market, laid to the holidays, was responsible for the decline. It was added that interest was expected to remain dull until after the holidays.

This dullness was also reflected in export circles, where a very quiet business was reported. Broomhall pointed out that North American shipments were larger and included clearances of 5,374,000 bu. from the Pacific coast, a large business for that section.

There was only a moderate demand for cash wheat in the principal markets. Prices and premiums ruled steady. United States visible supply of wheat increased 1,187,000 bu.

Corn Is Active

Corn was more active than wheat, although there was not enough buying interest in this grain to follow the upturn. After the early buying by the commission houses and locals on the wet weather, there was professional pressure based on the forecast for clear and colder weather.

Commercial demand for cash corn in the local and Southwest markets was good. Arrivals were moderately large at 501 cars, but country offerings continued light with only 15,000 bu. booked to arrive.

Reports of a better eastern cash demand and further export interest also prompted some buying. Broomhall speaks of an expected increase in clearances and adds that the cleared and colder weather would materially aid clearances from the Gulf to be brought in from the Southwest areas. This is in line with reports which have been current from Kansas City to the effect that there are still heavy Gulf sales to be filled.

The increase of 3,466,000 bu. in the visible supply was about as expected. Local shipping sales of corn totaled 180,000 bu. and included 25,000 bu. for export. There were sales of 325,000 bu. to go to mill and elevator at Buffalo and were 200,000 bu.

Visible supply of corn 171,000 bu.; oats

a gift that means a lot... not simply one that costs a good deal!

In choosing this most important Christmas present it is the thought and not the expense that counts. You think far more of her than of any ordinary person—and your gift must reflect this much greater interest.

The best way to choose something really appropriate, without all the confusion of an aimless search through crowded stores, is to look over the specially arranged column of the Classified Section which suggests "Gifts for Her." It's there every day until Christmas in

Tell How King Zogu Seized, His Comic Opera Kingdom

"Shoot a Few Leaders and Albania Will Progress," His Creed

TIRANA (Albania)—Take almost any musical comedy book, amputate the lyrics and you will have the plot of King Zogu's career. It is too incredible for real life; only the stage can supply a parallel. Now even the lyrics are coming back to plague this newest of European monarchs; how, will be explained later.

Seven years ago Zogu was a poor but honest mountain chieftain with a ragged following, an eye to the main chance and a philosophy of life that was so simple it was amazing. In brief, it was:

"What this country needs is a good revolution.

"We must shoot a few obstreperous leaders who stand in our way—then Albania will go forward."

To think with Zogu was to act, for it was only a few months from that day that ominous crackle of rifle fire furnished a sinister overtone to the every day hubbub of Tirana. Muffled voices. Running men. Donkeys being prodded into action.

For "Good of Albania"

On the following morning all was still again and frightened townspeople peered cautiously from behind drawn blinds upon a strange sight. In the open market place where groups of country women gathered daily to exchange gossip and market their produce, more than a dozen white-shrouded forms hung from tall, rough-timbered tripods. On each was the inscription:

"Hanged for the good of the country!"

That evening Ahmet Zogu led his nondescript followers in the strangest procession Tirana ever saw. Whereas the rank and file of revolutionists wore ill-fitting sheepskin garments and carried a variety of weapons, they were led by a wiry, handsome figure in immaculate European sports costume. Even to the smart, beachsmile English boots. Before the modest parliament building, Zogu halted his men and went inside. To him there came a long line of well-wishers of the new government—black-robed priests, turbaned hojas, who had made the pilgrimage to Mecca, sly-eyed merchants, fat cafe owners and civilian employes of the state.

When he was officially "elected" to the presidency, Zogu's first act was abolition of all titles. This despite the fact that he himself was a Bey by birth. Everyone was plain "Mr." or "Zotni" in the Albanian tongue. New roads were built; bridges that long had waited for "Allah" to repair were put in shape, and schools were started in every mountain hamlet. Moreover sporadic uprisings were dealt with in such manner that Zogu's power was soon unchallenged.

Blood Feud Threatens

All of which Albania must have lilked for a change. For after he had brought order out of chaos as president, Zogu was offered the job of King and special constitutional reforms were instituted to permit of his acceptance. He was crowned Shanderberg III at a ceremony to which nearly every European nation sent special representatives.

Zogu is still a bachelor though he was for a time engaged to the 15-year-old daughter of an Albanian Bey. This engagement was allowed to lapse following the coronation, the up and coming monarch, being, it is said, desirous of contracting an alliance with some royal house. [illegible] the Bey offended at the slight, will invoke the [illegible] the unwritten law of the blood feud—is, seemingly, a matter of little concern to the king. If Allah wills—kismet, it is written!

Therein lies the chance that the incidental music may return to Zogu's operetta—the sinister rattle of musketry directed by avenging kinsmen!

SUIT FOR DAMAGES HEARD IN BUCYRUS

C. O. Barringer, Marion, Plaintiff in Action for $22,000

The suit of Charles O. Barringer, of Marion, against George Ward and Ed Reeder, asking $22,000 for personal injuries resulting from an automobile accident on the Marion-Bucyrus rd., was heard before a jury in common pleas court at Bucyrus today.

The suit originated out of an accident in which cars owned by George Ward, Bucyrus taxi man, and Ed. Reeder, Bucyrus garage man, collided about a year ago. Barringer was a passenger in Reeder's car. The accident occurred near the Crawford-Marion county line.

AUTO CASES UP

Motorists in Court for Using 1930 License Plates

One arrest was made here yesterday on a charge of operating an automobile with 1929 license plates while two men arrested on the same charge over the week-end were tried in the municipal court yesterday afternoon. S. Freed was the man arrested yesterday.

R. K. Borders was fined $5 and costs in the municipal court yesterday on a charge of operating an automobile with improper licenses. Fine and costs were suspended upon promise to use proper license plates.

A similar charge against Herman Bohrman, of Bucyrus, was dismissed. Both men were arrested here over the week-end when they drove automobiles bearing 1929 plates.

License tags for next year may not be placed upon automobiles until Dec. 21. It is contrary to rules to use them before that time.

ELECTRICITY
EVERY DAY MEN
THOMAS A. EDISON, the world's greatest inventor in his line and certainly one of the greatest scientists whose work has benefited mankind perhaps more than the inventions of any other, says that, in his opinion, electric power is the greatest useful invention in the world today. Asked which of the inventions has contributed most to the comfort of humanity, Edison said: "Incandescent lights and power."
